Economy, inflation growing

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Government figures showed Thursday that the economy, despite a drought-drag caused by the drought, grew at the surprisingly brisk annual pace of 3.3 percent in the second quarter but inflation hit a six-year peak of 5.1 percent.

The Commerce Department said that the gain in the gross national product, the total output of goods and services, would have soared beyond the 3.3 percent clip had it not been for a larger-than-expected $9.6 billion loss in farm production. Without that impact of the drought, GNP growth from April through June would have hit a 4.3 percent annual pace, it said.

The 5.1 percent inflation rate, compared with just 1.7 percent in the first quarter, sparked new worries that the Federal Reserve will be forced to step up its anti-inflation campaign by sending interest rates even higher to quell the heat-up.

"The economy is growing much too fast," said Robert Dederick, chief economist of the Northern Trust Co. of Chicago. "It is nice to grow fast at the early stages of an expansion when you have an lot of unemployment, but at this stage we just can't afford it."

The 3.3 percent second quarter growth represented an upward revision from a month ago when the government estimated the GNP expanded at a 3.1 percent during the spring. GNP growth in the first three months of the year was 3.4 percent.

Strength in both quarters came from big improvements in the trade deficit, which shrank at an annual rate of $18.9 billion in the spring, the best performance in eight years.

Business investment shot up 16.3 percent in the second quarter, the biggest increase in a year, as companies boosted capital spending plans to meet increased export demands. Government and consumer spending was up as well in the second quarter.

Sergeant's arrest cracks NATO spy ring

The Associated Press

FRANKFURT, West Germany — A former U.S. Army sergeant arrested in West Germany headed an international spy ring that sold NATO defense secrets to the Soviets at high prices for a decade, officials said Thursday.

"We can't exclude the possibility that millions of dollars are involved," said Alexander Prechtel, spokesman for the chief federal prosecutor's office.

A second American soldier who was not identified received a "five-figure sum" of money for supplying the ring with military secrets, said Chief Federal Prosecutor Kurt Rehnmann. In addition, Prechtel said two Hungarian-born brothers arrested Tuesday in Sweden with cipher keys, coded messages and radios were a part of the ring.

It was too early to know how much damage was caused to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Prechtel said in an interview, but the ring is believed to have stolen documents concerning NATO defense plans for Europe and U.S. Army contingency plans for a ground war with the Soviet Union in Europe.

Clyde Lee Conrad, the former sergeant, was arrested Tuesday, and a statement from the prosecutor's office said he was charged with "compelling suspicion of espionage activities in an especially grave case."

Conrad was born in 1947 in Ohio and worked for the U.S. military for 20 years, Prechtel said. Army records list his hometown as Sebring, Ohio.

He worked as an infantryman and then as an "administration specialist" during his active duty, according to his service records released in Washington. Conrad received the National Defense Service Medal, the Vietnam Service Medal, five Army Commendation medals, the Army Achievement Medal and three Meritorious Service medals and seven Good Conduct medals.

State schools chief lauds 'C' rule stand

The Associated Press

BOISE — Over the last four years, the Idaho Board of Education hasn't yielded to pressure from parents and educators to soften its controversial "C" average rule.

Some districts complained that it appeared up to one-third of their students might not be able to graduate because of a requirement that seniors maintain a C average in their core subjects.

But this spring a survey of the first graduating class with four years under the new requirement shows only a tiny fraction of students — 1.1 percent — didn't get a diploma because of the rule.

"I think it says in the end, the districts got very serious about raising the level of performance, rather than reducing the standards," said state schools superintendent Jerry Evans. "As a final result, most students did receive their diplomas."

Four years ago, the Board of Education adopted a number of changes aimed at boosting academic excellence.

Stallings gives INEL cleanup top priority in next term

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sensing public concern about environmental problems at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, Rep. Richard Stallings promised he would make radioactive waste cleanup at the site a top priority in his next term.

Stallings warned the U.S. Department of Energy faculty to attack the waste problems aggressively or face a loss of public support that has hurt the Hanford Nuclear Reservation in Washington.

The two-term congressman's remarks prompted his opponent for re-election to accuse him of failing to support the nuclear research facility, which lies 20 miles north of Idaho Falls.

Stallings, a Rexburg Democrat, told an Idaho Falls civic group Thursday he would support several hundred million dollars in projects to improve the handling of waste problems at the site.

Stallings described himself as a long-time supporter of INEL but conceded he is more critical of the site than Republican challenger Dane Watkins. He said the Idaho Falls audience backed his message.

Watkins, in a phone interview later Thursday, said Watkins has neglected INEL. "His support for the site isn't there," Watkins said. "What we need is a cheerleader, and Dane Watkins wants to be that cheerleader."

Watkins, who farms near INEL and served seven terms in the state Senate, said he has confidence INEL officials will take care of the site's waste problems.

"They are doing things different than they used to," Watkins said.

Along with its nuclear research uses, INEL also recycles fuels for Navy reactors. It is a temporary storage site for the damaged Three Mile Island nuclear reactor core and radioactive waste from the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant in Colorado.

INEL's problems include plutonium contamination of the soil above the Snake River Plain Aquifer, a source of drinking water to 200,000 Southern Idahoans.

The aquifer is already contaminated with radioactive tritium from INEL, but INEL says the contamination is slight and poses no health hazard.

Stallings said he will fight for additional money in Congress for the removal of transuranic waste in the soil at INEL, a problem Stallings calls one of the most critical.

He will also seek funding for a $300 million to $500 million plant that would convert high-level radioactive waste granules into a ceramic-based waste to minimize waste volume and increase safety.

Stallings says he will also request money for a $13.1 million Liquid Effluent Treatment and Disposal Facility that would eliminate the waste percolation ponds at the chemical plant. The facility would be completed in 1991.

Watkins said Stallings' comments show "he's listening to Liz Paul rather than INEL."

Paul, of Ketchum, is a leader of the Snake River Alliance, a statewide environmental group critical of INEL's environmental problems. She gave Stallings' comments limited approval.

"He's on the right track," Paul said, but added that Stallings needs to say where the cleanup money will come from. The

Be ready to prevent teen suicides, specialist advises

The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Federal health officials have issued 10 recommendations to help communities prevent "cluster" suicides, typically among teen-agers.

Rule No. 1: Get ready for quick action before the problem begins.

After months of research, the Centers for Disease Control has issued recommendations stemming from a conference in New Jersey late last year, in which communities that had not experienced outbreaks of suicide learned from those that had.

Every bit of advice may not apply to every community. The important point is to be ready, a CDC specialist said Thursday.

"When the problem does arise with suicide clusters, there is usually a great deal of confusion," said Dr. Patrick O'Carroll, a CDC specialist in suicide research. "This confusion can lead to different sectors of the community working at cross purposes."

An example of a suicide "cluster" occurred last year when four Bergenfield, N.J., teen-agers killed themselves in an apparent death pact. Within six days, four more teen-agers were dead in the Chicago suburbs, and officials said those suicides probably were triggered by reports of the tragedy in New Jersey.

The CDC said in its report that community agencies — public and mental health agencies, schools, government, police, religious and the news-media — should cooperate in advance on a community plan.

The response to suicide in a community "has got to be gauged according to the situation," he said.

For example, the suicide of a student at home during a weekend would not call for "some kind of enormous SWAT-team approach" in school Monday morning, he said. In that case, quiet discussion would be in order.

But if three or four suicides occur in a matter of days, "and the community is going crazy, that situation you will do far more harm than good by trying to play it low-key," he said.

In general, the CDC's recommendations call for timely action to spread accurate information; programs to observe and counsel young people who might be at risk of suicide; possibly increased counseling and efforts to try to address "long-term" issues.

The recommendations, in brief:

— Develop a community action plan before a suicide cluster begins.

— Form a committee and designate an agency to coordinate community response.

— Identify community resources that might be useful.

— Implement the plan when a cluster of suicides begins or looks imminent.

— Respond quickly, contacting groups key to community response.

— Avoid glorifying victims and their deaths, and minimize sensationalism.

— Identify those at high risk and refer them for counseling.

— Arrange for timely and accurate information flow to news media.

— Identify elements that might increase suicide attempts and alter them, like block-off places where suicide attempts are taking place.

— Address long-term issues suggested by the crisis.

School lunches rate a 'C'

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Too many school lunches rate a "C" grade, because of their high-fat content, a consumer nutrition group said Thursday.

The group asked cafeterias to serve "healthfully modified" meals such as chili atop baked potatoes instead of hot dogs.

Ellen Hans, executive director of Public Voice for Food and Health Policy, said the group spotted encouraging trends toward fresh fruit and vegetables in a survey of school menus.

But she said the main courses served in school cafeterias "far too often are fried foods" and other dishes high in saturated fat.

"Our young children are a captive audience. We have an opportunity here," Hans said. "We've got to establish lifestyles that have healthy eating habits."

The $3.7 billion school lunch program, serving some 27 million children, is run by the Agriculture Department. Surplus commodities, purchased by USDA account for 20 percent of the foods used in the program.

Therein lies the root of the problem, according to Public Voice, because the commodities "are often high in fat, sugar or sodium."

Briefly

McClure attacks the press

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Embarrassed by its failure to predict Republican presidential nominee George Bush's choice for a running mate, the national media have taken out its frustration on Indiana Sen. Dan Quayle, Sen. James McClure says.

Speaking Wednesday in Coeur d'Alene to about 55 lawmakers at the Western Legislative Conference, the Idaho Republican said the nation's political pundits were sizing up a number of potential running mates for Bush without seriously considering Quayle.

When the vice president made his choice, the press looked bad, McClure said.

"They had to prove that it was George Bush who made a mistake and not themselves and they set about doing that with a vengeance," he said.

Boil water, Salmon residents

SALMON (AP) — With work on Salmon's new sand filter system set to begin next week, local residents have been ordered to boil drinking water beginning Sunday until the construction is complete.

Mayor Jack Nelson said Wednesday that the city will work on one sand filter at a time, always leaving two filters in operation during the project.

The water from the third filter will bypass the filtering system and be mixed untreated with filtered city water, he said.

Sandpoint recall drive on

SANDPOINT (AP) — The signatures of 587 local residents have been gathered on petitions calling for the resignation or ouster of Sandpoint Mayor Ron Chaney.

City Clerk Helen Newton said the recall petition was presented Thursday by Horace Smith and Alvie Jeffers. At least 51 valid signatures are required to force a recall election.

Chaney has 10 days to get 51 more signatures. If they are sufficient, the mayor then has five days to resign. If he does not, I must order an election to be held in not less than 30 days nor more than 40 days," Ms. Newton said.

Expert looks into job future

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — American workers must adjust to razor-sharp competition and advancing technology that will see the number of "brawn" jobs drop and "brain" jobs increase, a National Alliance of Business official says.

"It doesn't matter how many jobs are available in the future if the people can't fill these jobs," Alliance Vice President Janet Keyes said Wednesday at the Western Legislative Conference's closing session on human resources.

Ms. Keyes said more than half of the nation's jobs now require education beyond high school. By 2000, that number will jump to 75 percent.

Idaho women get on ballot

BOISE (AP) — Two women have qualified for Idaho's November ballot as independent candidates for president and vice president, the secretary of state's office says.

Petitions with the signatures of 6,404 Idaho voters were submitted Wednesday on behalf of presidential candidate Lenora B. Fulani of New York City and vice presidential running mate Joyce J. Utner of Chicago, elections clerk Marilyn Johnson said Thursday.

She said at least 4,111 signatures were needed to qualify the ticket for the ballot.

Crews still battle stubborn Idaho blazes

By The Associated Press

Flames from the raging 2,200-acre Eagle Bar fire near Hells Canyon spotted into the middle of a valuable commercial stand of timber Thursday, forcing fire bosses to divert at least one helicopter to try containing the blaze.

"It's a serious threat right now," Payette National Forest spokeswoman Carla Tipton said. The spot fire, burning in 12 million board feet of Douglas fir on the Deep Creek drainage near the Idaho-Oregon border, was in such steep terrain that only the chopper, dumping water from a suspended bucket, was being used to combat the flames.

Fire hoses, awaiting 200 more reinforcements, massed their available crews on Grassy Ridge ahead of the fire's southern flank, where they hoped to block further advance of the man-caused blaze near the nation's deepest gorge.

To the northeast, fire managers expected to control the 380-acre Ladder Creek fire by day's end. About 200 firefighters contained that blaze in the Frank Church-River of No Return Wilderness late Wednesday.

Over 160 firefighters battled the 800-acre Boston Lake fire in the wilderness to the south, trying to hold it on a southern ridge. Nez Perce National Forest spokeswoman Mary Zabinski said.

Another 20 were monitoring the 2,500-acre Ladder Creek fire in the same general area as it slowly burned down Crofoot Creek drainage toward the natural fire break of the main Salmon River, and Ms. Zabinski said managers were awaiting the arrival of eight more crews to begin assaults on the worst of eight wildfires in the wilderness to the north.

By day's end, fire bosses expected to contain the Pollard fire in the Salmon National Forest of eastern Idaho. Although only seven acres in the size, the fire was burning within miles of the city of Salmon.

On the western boundary of the Salmon, the Golden II fire had raced over 500 acres of Church wilderness and was burning rapidly, but land managers said it was moving in a relatively confined area and was not threatening private property or structures.

Efforts to suppress the Eagle Bar fire fell apart late Wednesday when flames ran over nearly two more square miles to the south, breaking over Haley Ridge into the Deep Creek drainage and flushing crews from the Kinney Point fire camp. The camp was re-established five miles to the south at Horse Mountain.

Firefighters managed to stop the flames from making any major penetration into the Deep Creek timber stand on the east side of the ridge at Sheep Rock but then lost the fight when the fire spotted beyond the break line.

"We've been experiencing erratic fire behavior because of the drought," Ms. Tipton said. The fires are burning faster and easier than what they would normally. And they are turning different directions from what we would expect them to do."

GOP plans major support for Watkins

POCATELLO (AP) — With Democrat Rep. Richard Stallings' hold on Idaho's 2nd District congressional seat seen as vulnerable, the National Republican Congressional Committee has pledged to pump thousands of dollars into the campaign of GOP challenger Dan Watkins.

"Stallings' seat in the House is among seven the Democrats could lose in November," Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said Thursday. "The NRCC is out to spoil his hopes of garnering a third term."

Riverboat man to answer charge of operating without a license

ST. ANTHONY (AP) — A second man is to be arraigned here next week on a charge of operating without an outfitter's license, in connection with the operation of a riverboat on the Henry's Fork of the Snake River.

Ricardo R. Love, 35, representing Mack's Inn, is scheduled for arraignment on Tuesday.

Ralph Miller, St. Anthony, earlier pleaded innocent to the misdemeanor charge. Trial is scheduled in magistrate court Sept. 9.

Miller and Love were cited Aug. 9 by Arlo Larsen, enforcement officer for the Idaho Outfitters and Guides Board. The citations alleged the riverboat was illegally operated on the river from about May 24 until the citations

House and Senate two years ago in order to have a GOP majority to aid George Bush's presidency, McClure said.

The money will be welcome by the Watkins campaign, which has been having trouble building a war chest. Through the reporting period, the campaign had raised just $36,000 in contributions and loaned his own campaign another $14,000.

The campaign already had paid out $27,000 and had another $29,000 in debts.

Stallings said he expected Watkins to get financial help from the national Republican organization, but that he was prepared for any GOP challenge.

"This may be a desperate campaign that takes the low road to score points with the voters," he said.

Mark Rummell has been appointed to prosecute the case. Fremont County Prosecutor Jack Hoopes dismissed himself.

After 20 years, hypocrisy and cowardice bothering Viet vet

WASHINGTON — Hypocrite! Coward! Abuser of privilege! Vietnam War supporter who has felt guilty for more than 20 years about dodging combat! I am speaking not of Dan Quayle, but of myself.

As a Vietnam veteran who served honorably for three or four months in 1966 as a Marine corporal at Chu Lai, who even got shot at a little bit,

I may seem like an odd person to be flagellating myself like this in public. On the other hand, as a Vietnam veteran I am entitled to benefits including the right to guilt, depression, irrational outbursts and other symptoms of "post-traumatic stress disorder," such as an inability to get along in the world of the sort of conventional wisdom we've been seeing in the last week, regarding the Republican candidate for vice president.

Hence this equal confession, no doubt the moral equivalent of those conclaves of veterans offering counseling outside movie theaters where "Platoon" was playing, a while back.

The Quayle business has brought it all back. It seems that when he was in college, he supported our prosecution of the war in Vietnam — he was a hawk, in other words.

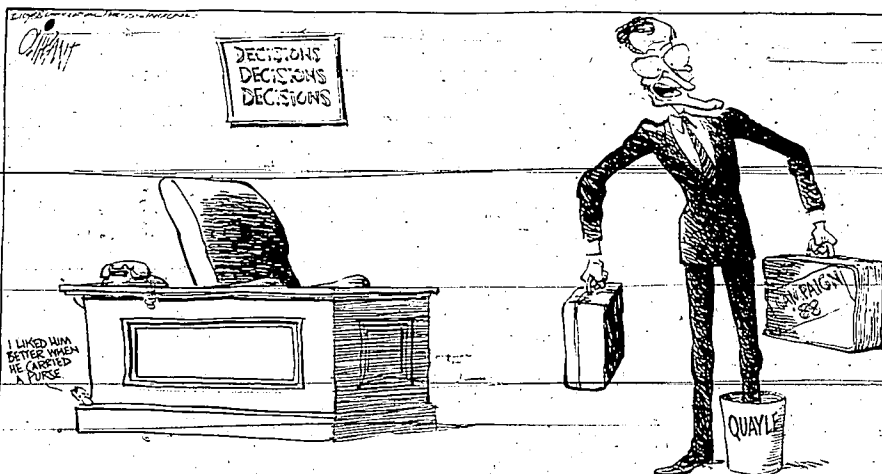

But he seems to have violated one of nature's first laws: don't let your mouth write any checks that your butt can't cash.

He supported the war, but he didn't want to take part in it. He joined the National Guard. He spent six years as a weekend warrior and was honorably discharged as a sergeant. Would that my moral dilemma were as simple.

When John Kennedy was running the country, and we were all young, I thought the war in Vietnam was pretty neat — spooking around in berets, the best and the brightest, mind and muscle welded together as only Kennedy could weld them together.

But in 1964, I found myself on an aircraft carrier about 60 miles east of Vietnam, reading the message traffic on the "Donkin Gulf incident" and thinking that I'd just as soon stay out of the landing craft.

Next stop, Chu Lai. I wasn't happy.

BELIEVE ME, I'M MY OWN MAN NOW — IF I MAKE THE EXECUTIVE DECISION TO CAMPAIGN WITH MY FOOT STUCK IN THIS, THEN THAT'S THE WAY IT'S GONNA BE.

I hated getting shot at. A lot of my friends were getting killed. Maybe I should have extracted some sort of cosmic principle from my unhappiness and taken a stand, refused to serve, something like that.

After a few months on a civic action team, winning hearts and minds with bags of flour and a horrible candy called "Sweetarts," my enlistment was running out. I got an offer from the U.S. Marine Corps.

They'd make me a sergeant if I'd stay another three months. That's how badly they needed me. I turned my back on them. I said no. I even used my friendship with the clerks at regiment to get the first plane out, in my rotation month. I went home.

For years I felt guilty about this. I felt guilty that I hadn't seen more combat. I'd say to myself, sure, you got shot at a little, but you never got shelled, man.

Of course, it wasn't till the Quayle business last week that I realized I'd been a hypocrite too. I'd turned my back on my buddies and come home to urge that they keep fighting the war. Like Quayle, I was a hawk who didn't want to fight.

I was living with a lot of contradictions, but I got used to it. I couldn't understand those hard-eyed college kids who kept shaking their heads over the "contradictions," as if contradictions were some bizarre unreality.

symptoms of some terminal cultural cancer.

I saw that picture of him in the National Guard uniform and the aviator sunglasses and thought he looked like a rich-kid jerk, but I've learned, in my maturity, that the rich we have always with us.

I heard the right-wingers ask why the press hadn't busted presidential candidate Dick Gephardt for spending his Vietnam War in an Air National Guard unit, and why nobody cared that Sen. Bill Bradley had managed to find himself an Air Force Reserve unit to get into while he was playing basketball with the Knicks.

I heard veterans of the antiwar movement take the curious position that it would have been better for Quayle to have fought in Vietnam, implying that hypocrisy was worse than killing people in an unjust cause.

I noticed that the same people who found it cowardly, hypocritical or unpatriotic of him to enlist in the National Guard didn't have any problem with his taking a four-year student deferment in college, as if college were an inalienable right and even a patriotic duty, while serving in the Guard were a selfish indulgence.

I recalled that I've never known any of my friends who served in the National Guard to brag about it, while I've heard endless boasting from people who perjured themselves in front of draft boards or held parties to celebrate the success of their claims to homosexuality or schizophrenia.

I wondered why I was hearing less, complaining from Vietnam veterans than from people who had dodged the draft, stayed safe in school, opposed the war.

As usual, I copped out, ducked the contradictions and tried not to think about it all too much. Nobody else seemed to be, for all the talking they did. Besides, I'd been living with hypocrisy and cowardice myself for 20 years — not always comfortably, but I guess that's life.

Letters/Quayle's decision, methods should receive careful examination

First guess doesn't count

How difficult it must be for Senator Quayle to spend time defending decisions made 20 years ago, in full light of the country's struggle through the nightmarish Vietnam era.

Since he never participated, I can truly understand why he thinks it is not really an issue.

However, his decision and methods used to join a Guard unit in 1969 should be looked into with the same vigor expended on Eagleton, Ferraro, Mart, and others who aspire to the office he is nominated for.

George Bush, in defending him has stated he never burned his draft card, the flag, or skipped to Canada. These statements really cloud the issue as I see it.

Had he done any of the above, we would know where he stood in 1969 and could have respected his views. As it was, he used a student deferment for four years and then played the game further by securing a position in a Guard unit that had no openings, within a week after his student status was to become invalid. All this time, he was hawkish on Vietnam.

I suppose the part that sickens me most is his attempt to equate service at that time, in a Guard unit, with those who spent their tour in Vietnam, rather than admitting he joined in order to stay at home in the safety and comfort of his family and to continue his career climb. Obviously, all quite legal.

I will give the man one point. Dodger Dan definitely has gall! Most men who possess the character traits needed to for the office of Vice President wouldn't attempt to show Guard service at that time in a heroic or patriotic manner.

Character is obviously not one of his better traits. He seems to forget that millions of us went through the same period and faced the same decisions. Except for the $6,000 debt, we're still out there, quietly smiling and waiting for our turn at the polls. I'll give Dodger Dan two guesses how most of us will vote, provided he's still on the ticket, and the first guess doesn't count.

Lotteries really are gambling
Arvilla Gott is more right than she realizes when she attempts to criticize Sherret Olsen's letter opposing the lottery.

As Ms. Gott points out, lotteries really are gambling. They bring to a state all the heartache and pain we associate with casinos and bookies. The only difference is that with a lottery, the state government is the bookie!

We should all recognize the lottery for what it is — a scheme hatched in such places as Atlanta, Ga., by Bally Corp., whose lottery division, Scientific Games, Inc., has already poured thousands of dollars into the campaign to impose a state-administered lottery on the citizens of Idaho.

We have a unique quality of life in Idaho, and we owe it to ourselves to protect it by voting no on the lottery in November.

Best stories may lie ahead

What is all the "flak" about one basketball player, a former star of CST? I was in a gentle group of individuals betting on the contents of a May, 1983, Times News article. Guess what, The article quoted Trenkle "Let's face it — junior college kids face some kind of hangup or else they'd be at four-year schools."

Then later came a new breed — the alcohol and tobacco sponsored group of out-of-staters (The Broncos). Activities in the dorm really accelerated! Maybe the best is yet to come.

Won't change Word at all

In response to Candy Barber's letter, Aug. 23:

Supposing a "religious" person who believes in God and what God professes were to read this in the Holy Scriptures, and let us consider how to stimulate one another to good deeds and love, not forsaking our own assembling together, as is the habit of some, but encouraging one another; and all the more, as you see the day drawing near. For if we go on sinning willfully after receiving the knowledge of the truth, there no longer remains a sacrifice for sins, but a certain terrifying expectation of judgement... (Heb. 10:24-27a). Then would he believe that he needs to attend church on a regular basis?

I didn't say going to church makes a person religious. But surely a religious person will go to church for God has said it shall be so.

I do apologize; I did misunderstand your statement about Christ's purity. I agree, that He denied sin, but we didn't. I find your term of "twisting" words offensive because I only respond to what my understanding of your written word were. I in no way purposely twisted them.

You write as if forgiveness was the only criteria for not being wicked. If you forgive, you're not wicked? God says, "...for all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God." (Ro. 3:23) Wickedness can be termed as rebellion from God. That's wickedness. A little white lie is just as wicked in God's eyes as murder. Sin is sin to Him. It's all in the heart.

Also, I don't think this controversy is outrageous. I think that if I am contributing to this, so be it. I feel that I am contributing to God's Word being spread through the means of the media, where those who have not read a Bible in some time, or ever, are actually getting pieces of it through this newspaper, which they will read. The Good News of Christ is being spread to those who are unwilling to read it from the Bible or hear it from the pulpit. I am not perfect, and will be the first to admit that. Therefore it seems that I find a lot wrong with everyone but myself. It must be because I know I have the truth of Christ in my heart. It's not just a theory to believe in, as equal as anyone's theory of belief. It's no theory. It's truth. Jesus said, "If you abide in My word, then you are truly disciples of Mine; and you shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

(John 8:31, 32) Scripture also says "He who has the Son has the life; he who does not have the Son does not have the life." (1 John 5:12)

I know what a true disciple is. I know that I have the Son. If you want to term that as finding a lot wrong with everyone else, go ahead. But that won't change what the Word of God tells me.

If it is against the law to not wear seatbelts, how come school busses don't have them? I think they should wear seatbelts. Everyone should wear seatbelts for their safety. Use seatbelts!

Van broken into at motel

On July 21, I and two others spent the night at Motel 6 in Twin Falls. That evening, someone broke into my van, taking several thousand dollars worth of items, some of which can never be replaced as they belonged to my father and grandfather, both of whom are deceased.

I had several thousand dollars worth of collector items I had acquired while working at the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles, those too, can never be replaced.

My briefcase was taken and about 60 hours worth of work was included in it, that too was gone. I had several travel receipts and I can be reimbursed when I obtain duplicate copies. I had some income tax papers which I am now having to scramble to replace.

This is the second year in a row that my van was broken into at Motel 6 in Twin Falls. I contacted Motel 6's national headquarters in Dallas and they have promised on three occasions "to get back with me" and I am still waiting.

I take three prescription medicines. I found the bottles emptied near the motel dumpster and the medicine either scattered or ground into the ground by some thoughtless person's foot. I went several days, until I could return home, without medicine that I must take daily.

Air quality important to all

Craters of the Moon's celebration of "A Day in the Air" is such a positive way to get people thinking about the importance of clean air. Anything that can be done to improve air quality will benefit all of us.

Dirty air puts a strain on anyone's lungs and respiratory system and can seriously aggravate conditions such as bronchitis, sinus problems, asthma, allergies, and emphysema.

I hope more people will become interested in improving air quality!

Drastic developments in year

I am writing you to update the taxpayers of Twin Falls County on how the "Wheels of Justice" are still turning. Since my letter which was published on Sept. 22, 1987, in the Times-News, Letters to the Editor section, there have been some rather drastic developments.

As I mentioned in my last letter, I was and am being held on a charge of second-degree kidnapping and also on a charge of aggravated assault. These charges were brought against me by my common-law wife with whom I was living at the time.

After being released on my own recognizance I ran into one of her friends who threatened me with the statement that he was going to tell the authorities that I was making threats against my common-law wife. I knew that if he did this that I would have been re-arrested and returned to jail.

I then fled to Michigan. Shortly after arriving in Michigan I contacted Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Mr. J. Scott James. I told him that there were things involved in the case that if they were known, I felt that the charges would be dismissed. Mr. James stated that he could not discuss them with me unless I returned to Idaho and turned myself in. He said that if I did that, I would have the chance to talk with him.

Because of my desire to again work with young people, I knew that I must return to Idaho and clean up the problem that I had here in Twin Falls. I turned myself in to the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Dept. on April 13, 1988, at about 10 p.m.

After being in jail for a few days I tried to contact Mr. J. Scott James, Deputy Prosecuting Attorney, to see if we could get together to discuss my case. Untrue to his word over the phone when I talked to him from Michigan, he declined to confer with me.

This is itself goes to prove what I said in my last letter, and that is that the prosecutor's office of Twin Falls County does not care if a person is innocent or guilty or how much money they cost the taxpayers, but only that they can gain a conviction as that is the only way that they feel that they can keep their jobs.

My trial was set for May 19, 1988. On May 18, 1988, about 1 a.m. I began experiencing pains in my chest and I thought I was having a heart attack as I have had three of them in the past.

While at the hospital Mr. Scott James called and talked to the guard who was watching me and stated that he knew that I was faking. Upon returning to the jail I learned that Mr. James had made statements to some of the officers at the jail, that he knew I was faking so that I could delay the trial and that he was considering bringing charges against me for contempt of court because I was not there on the 19th of May for my trial.

Dr. Gillan wrote a letter to the court which stated in part "found at surgery to have an acutely infected, gangrenous gallbladder. It appeared to have had significant infection, probably for two to three days prior to surgery and the surgery in itself was somewhat difficult to remove the infected area." This period as you can see covers the period in which I was stated by Mr. James that I was faking.

Upon my return to the jail I was informed that my trial date was set for Sept. 20, 1988. Now, considering the cost up to this point, which I would guess just for medical bills, is over $20,000 and then add to that whatever they figure it cost to house a prisoner per day in Twin Falls County Jail plus six months in the Jerome County Jail which I have been told is $25 per day which adds up to about $3,000. A fair total would be around $25,000 so far.

I would assume that with that amount of money that the county could hire a couple of more deputies for a year. Had the prosecutor agreed to at least talk with me, I would assume that there could have been a pretty good chance that the charges would have been dropped.

I just felt the taxpayers should know where their money is going.

Election in civil-rights town explodes along racial lines

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — The City Council deadlocked along racial lines on whether to certify the election of Mayor Joe Smitherman to a seventh term, with his black challenger claiming the mayor was a "dictator" who had stolen the election.

Two people were charged with disorderly conduct Wednesday in this town of 27,000 people that is a landmark of the civil-rights movement, after the council split 3-3 on whether to accept Tuesday's vote.

Smitherman's main challenger, City Councilman Cleophus Mann, who is seeking to become Selma's first black mayor, said one precinct did not open on time Tuesday and that there were other irregularities. "You stole it!" Mann shouted at the meeting. We might as well have been in Panama. We sit around and let a dictator run things."

Returns showed Smitherman receiving 3,752 votes in Tuesday's three-way, non-partisan election. Mann received 2,769 votes; Coy Darby, a white challenger, received 453 votes.

Selma mayor candidate Cleophus Mann restrains Ernest Swift Sr. during an election dispute.

If the results are upheld, Smitherman would not face a runoff election because he received more than 50 percent of the vote.

After the meeting, Mann nearly came to blows with city attorney Henry Pitts and one campaign aide and another man were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct.

Arrested after Wednesday's council clash were the Rev. Ernest Swift

Sr., 42, one of Mann's campaign workers; and Byron Douglas Smith, 21. Pitts said both men shouted at him and threatened him.

Swift was arrested a second time when, released from jail, he returned to City Hall and shouted at the mayor that he was "still a crook because you had people crooked at the polls."

Dukakis blames Reagan for drugs; Bush compares rival with Carter

By The Associated Press

Democrat Michael Dukakis said Thursday that cocaine imports have tripled in seven years and charged the Reagan administration with permitting a "drug cancer" to take root. George Bush said he represents "proven tested leadership" and likened his presidential rival to Jimmy Carter.

Dukakis and Bush sparred long distance as their vice presidential running mates encountered turbulence on their own campaign rounds.

Democrat Lloyd Bentsen was booed repeatedly when he praised Dukakis before the Veterans of Foreign Wars meeting in Chicago.

Republican vice presidential candidate Dan Quayle was greeted in Columbia, Mo., by competing groups of supporters and demonstrators and a few signs that read "War Wimp" and "Quayle's a Chicken." That was a reference to the furor over his National Guard service at the height of the Vietnam War.

The candidates spoke as the debate over campaign debates continued in Washington. Nancy M. Neuman, president of the League of Women Voters, said she was encouraged that aides to Bush and Dukakis would meet next week to begin negotiations on debates for the fall.

Dukakis leveled a sharp attack on the drug policies pursued by President Reagan and said Bush had failed in his task as a leader in the administration war on drugs. He said the administration was "actively in business with (Panama) General Manuel Noriega while Noriega was involved in drug activity."

An upbeat Bush said the campaign momentum belonged to him as he opened a four-day campaign swing through his adopted home state of Texas. He said the country needs "proven, tested leadership" in the White House.

The vice president compared Massachusetts Gov. Dukakis with former President Carter, adding he did not want to return to the "malaise" that occurred "the last time a governor came out of nowhere and became president of the United States."

Standing in the late-summer heat in San Antonio, Bush told a riverfront rally that he would revive the faltering oil industry, create a better climate for small business, fight against federal gun control and provide jobs for the state's large minority population.

Bentsen was wearing his VFW cap as he defended Dukakis before a hostile audience. "He can be trusted as a defender of American security and as a champion of American values."

Quayle: 'I'm qualified' for president

BOONVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Republican vice presidential nominee Dan Quayle, countering suggestions that he is not mature enough to be president, said Thursday he is qualified "if that situation arises."

As for his youth, the 41-year-old Indiana senator said, "I'm very close to the same age as Jack Kennedy was when he was elected — not vice president, but president."

Quayle also said he had answered questions about his military record and that the American public is "getting a little bit sick" of hearing about the issue.

"I've answered questions for seven days now," Quayle told reporters as he arrived in Columbia, Mo. "We're going to talk about the future. We're going to talk about jobs. We're going to talk about other issues that the American people are interested in."

The Indiana senator scheduled a series of stops in Missouri, ending with an appearance in Sedalia at the state fair.

A scheduled news conference was abruptly cut off and Quayle instead answered questions from farmers at the state fair although he told them, "I won't take any questions about the Indiana National Guard."

Most of the farmers' questions centered on Medicare reform, drought relief legislation and the newly signed trade bill which Quayle opposed in the Senate debate but described Thursday as "a good first step to send a message that we are serious about trade."

Civil-rights rally anniversary expected to draw thousands

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tens of thousands of people, including Michael Dukakis and Jesse Jackson, are expected to rally here Saturday to mark the 25th anniversary of Martin Luther King Jr.'s "I Have a Dream" speech, organizers said Thursday.

King's widow, Coretta Scott King; Democratic presidential nominee Dukakis and civil-rights leader Jackson plan to address the gathering, but Republican presidential nominee George Bush did not respond to an invitation, said the Rev. Joseph Lowery, who succeeded King as head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

"We have not heard from Mr. Bush," Lowery said at a news conference. A Bush spokesman, Dan McLane, said the vice president plans to campaign in Texas on Saturday. About 250,000 people marched in Washington on Aug. 28, 1963, one of the great days in the civil-rights movement and the occasion of King's most famous speech.

"Something magic happened there. A new vision was shared with the American people. Whether that happens on Saturday or not, I don't know," said Andrew Young, who in 1963 was a young minister working with King and now is mayor of Atlanta.

Since 1963, said Lowery, "everything has changed and nothing has changed. We have come a long, long way. But we still have a terribly long way to go, particularly in the arena of economic justice."

Thirty-one years after King, Lowery and Ralph Abernathy helped found the SCLC, the median income of blacks remains only 57 percent of the median white income.

U.S. set to review duty-free trade privileges of 6 nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter announced Thursday he would review the duty-free privileges of six countries accused of abusing workers' rights.

The six include Israel, which has been charged with violating the rights of Palestinian workers, and Syria, Burma, Haiti, Liberia and Malaysia.

Any country found to have abused worker rights would risk losing its rights to export products to the United States free of charge under a program known as the Generalized System of Preferences, or GSP. In order to qualify for the GSP, which grants duty-free rights to help the growth of developing countries, beneficiaries must comply with international trade union laws.

The decision to target the six countries for the 1988 annual review of the GSP was based on petitions from labor unions, human rights and lobbying groups.

Yeutter rejected petitions to review the GSP rights of El Salvador, Guatemala, Indonesia, the Philippines, Thailand and Turkey.

"My decision to accept or reject these petitions was made after careful and deliberate consideration," Yeutter said in a statement. He added that "the acceptance of these petitions does not prejudice our final determination."

The complaint against Israel was filed by the American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee last June. The organization accused Israel of denying trade union protection to more than 100,000 Palestinians who travel daily from the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip to work in Israel.

The group, which is critical of the U.S. government's pro-Israel foreign policy, also accused Israel of closing trade union offices in the West Bank and arresting Palestinian labor activists.

The AFL-CIO filed the petitions against Syria, Burma and Malaysia, the United Electrical Workers complained about Haiti and an international lawyers group submitted the petition against Liberia.

Israel has the most to lose if its privileges are withdrawn. In 1987, it exported $487 million worth of goods under the GSP program. Malaysia exported $347 million in goods under terms of the GSP, while the others exported far smaller amounts.

A free-trade agreement between Israel and the United States already exempts some Israeli exports from duty, but that 1986 pact is being phased in over a 10-year period and still does not cover hundreds of items.

Three days of public hearings will be held starting Oct. 3 in Washington on the case, and investigations will be conducted in the targeted countries. The trade representative's final determination will be announced on April 1, 1989.

Deficit will avoid automatic cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration estimated Thursday that the budget deficit in the upcoming fiscal year would be low enough to avoid politically painful, automatic spending cuts under the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law.

But the White House budget chief also warned that Congress had precious little room to enact new spending programs before the slashes, totaling at least $10 billion, would have to be invoked.

A report by the Office of Management and Budget said that based on programs enacted through Aug. 15, the fiscal 1989 deficit would be $144 billion — $2 billion below the $146 billion level at which across-the-board cuts would be required.

When figuring in programs signed into law over the last few days, the amount of red ink grew to $145.3 billion — just $700 million below the $146 billion trigger.

"So far, at least, there's no need for across-the-board cuts," OMB Director James C. Miller III told reporters.

But Miller noted the lengthy list of expensive bills that lawmakers intend to consider once Congress returns from its summer recess next month and said, "I'm not sleeping particularly well these days."

The House and Senate are still working on bills dealing with hunger relief, anti-drug programs, welfare reform, child care, a minimum-wage increase and other items that would boost the deficit well above the $146 billion trigger.

However, lawmakers were considered unlikely to set off the Gramm-Rudman process of spending cuts and risk the wrath of voters angry because their favorite programs have been slashed.

On Aug. 19, the Congressional Budget Office estimated the 1989 deficit at $153 billion, an amount that would trigger $17 billion in cuts. That projection, which serves only as a guideline for lawmakers, was based on more pessimistic economic assumptions than those used by the administration.

GM calls back '83 models to fix bad switch

WASHINGTON (AP) — General Motors Corp. on Thursday began calling more than 600,000 1983 Oldsmobiles and Buicks to replace an emissions control component that may have quit working.

The Environmental Protection Agency said a defective thermal vacuum switch causes the cars to exceed federal standards on emission of gasoline vapors and carbon monoxide.

GM said the switch, which allows fuel vapor to be burned by the engine, fails because rubber compounds used in its construction deteriorate after years of contact with gasoline.

The defective switch has no effect on the operation of the car, GM said.

The automaker said installation of the new switch would take less than one hour. The EPA estimated the time of repair at 20 minutes.

The agency said 613,582 vehicles, all with 5-liter engines, are involved in the recall. They are the 1983 Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme, Cutlass Cruiser, Delta 88, Ninety-Eight, Toronado and Custom Cruiser, and the 1983 Buick Le Sabre, Estate Wagon, Electra and Riviera.

Sawtooth Sawtooth Conference

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

It's topsy-turvy time in the Sawtooth Conference where, over the past three years, three different schools have represented the alignment in the state Class A-4 eight-man football playoffs.

The Richfield Tigers, with three consecutive appearances — including the 1986 state championship — have been the fixture in those playoffs, while in that same span North Gem and Rockland have qualified for the title game and Camas County lasted to the semifinals.

Tiger successes, which came during the tenure of Coach Rudy Miles (21-4-1), were designed primarily around the running and passing skills of 1987 graduate Barry Ward — possibly the most underrated skill player in Idaho's eight-man game throughout his prep career.

Rockland stepped in behind a senior-dominated team last year, bowed to Richfield early, but delighted the home crowd by visiting revenge in the conference counter three weeks before dropping the state title to Longpin Conference champ Garden Valley.

The same club which eliminated Richfield from the post season play a week earlier.

But, like the Tigers, Rockland lost several key starters — notably, all-state linemen Brian Bragg, Calvin Smith, Travis Farr and Brad Fillmore — and are faced with rebuilding on a promising group of underclassmen.

The Associated Press prep poll holds Richfield at the top of the pre-season rankings, lists Rockland in fourth place while awarding honorable mentions to both North Gem and Camas County.

But according to a poll of Sawtooth coaches, North Gem is the leading contender to dethrone the Bulldogs this time around. Just how far the boys from Bancroft are capable of going should be answered early when the Cowboys test Garden Valley, currently ranked second, in a Friday road opener.

The most unlikely emerging power is Camas County, which fell to 1-6 in 1987 after posting an 8-2 record and a playoff appearance the previous year.

The present consensus leaves Carey battling it out with Rockland to stay off the bottom of the pile, but don't count anyone out just yet. Nobody's likely to march unharmed to the title, according to Rockland mentor Steve May.

"I think the league will be a little bit closer all the way through," he predicted. "Based on who they have back, North Gem and Richfield are the teams to beat, but with Camas, Rockland and Carey giving everyone trouble right on through the season."

Richfield

The Tigers, under incoming coach Shane Nilsson — who took over the reins in today's opener without the services of Ray Stein, who started most of his junior year at running back, and with key linemen Casey Riley (6-foot, 1-inch, 180 pounds) and Jason Armstrong (5-8, 170) nursing nagging injuries.

Stein's return is "indefinite," the result of an automobile accident while Riley — an all-state lineman in both his sophomore and junior seasons — is suffering from a pinched nerve in the neck and Armstrong slowed by a bad ankle.

"Things could be rough if those guys stay hurt," Nilsson emphasized. "It would cause a serious nosedive for us in the line."

Although neither are expected to miss any games, the impact hits Nilsson's game plan to replace his predecessor's unorthodox tandem offense by "airing it out a little from the pocket and I formations." He's pleased with what he's seen on the practice field, but sophomore center Jake Riley (6-1, 175) will have to live up to his advance billing, if the Tiger pass protection is to hold up against larger defensive lines.

Ward, the 1987 statistical leader in three categories, is no longer eligible to direct his alma mater on the field, but will be on the sidelines as an assistant working with last year's understudy Spence King, a 5-10, 150-pound senior, and his receiving corps — Laine King, a 6-1, 180-pounder, who was named to the 1987 AP all-star at offensive end, will do the lion's share of his pass catching out of the backfield this year where he'll be joined by fellow senior Greg Sorenson (5-9, 140).

Casey Riley, who plays guard on offense and just about anywhere he's needed on the defensive side, made the all-state team on both sides of the ball as a sophomore, then repeated on the defensive line last year.

The big redhead will anchor a defensive unit which returns, in addition to Armstrong, seniors ends Shannon Erwin and Rob Appell, both 5-8 and 145 pounds. A new face in sophomore Troy Swainston (5-7, 140), fills the out a defensive backfield which boasts experienced lettermen in both Kings and Sorenson.

North Gem

The Cowboys, who handed eventual state champion Garden Valley its only defeat of the year in the 1987 opener, didn't live up to their promise on the gridiron from that point and finished 4-3.

It's back to Garden Valley this afternoon for a rematch against the Longpin champs. With a nucleus of seven returning senior starters, including three all-state picks and most of the backfield, it's unlikely that Coach Frank Bunce's charges will falter again.

Keith Greenwood (5-10, 175) may be the best linebacker in the small-school game, but is one of the brightest lights of his class and every bit as dangerous at running back.

Greenwood shares ball-carrying duties out of the power-I with another all-state defender, Christian White (6-0, 192), leaving junior quarterback Jason Perkins (5-11, 175) as the sole question mark in the backfield.

Senior receivers Shane Lewis and Jason Smith stand 6-0 and 5-11, respectively, and possess speed enough to keep defenses honest. Bryce Clements, a 5-1, 185-pound senior, and the club's all-state kicker returns to an experienced offensive line along with leading tackler Bob Hulise (6-0, 160) and center Casey Iverson (5-11, 159).

The Cowboys' 4-3-1 defense is a maverick alignment among their peers, but figures to be strong with three juniors — tackle Kevin Melaine (5-11, 152), Jason Smith, a 6-0, 176-pound linebacker, and safety Darin Jenkins (6-2, 160) — filling in the holes.

The cream of the newcomers includes David Kelly (6-0, 160) sophomore and Shane Lewis (5-10, 140) senior at end, Alden Bybee (5-9, 180) senior and Jason Whistisen (5-10) sophomore, guards.

Camas County

The Musers have defending champion Rockland on the schedule just once, on Sept. 23, but under the new conference rules the result is worth either two victories or a pair of losses.

A win over the Bulldogs would double Camas County's single triumph of a year ago, but with three starters back on offense and keeping five on defense the odds are good that they'll win more games than they lose anyway.

The one hitch in Coach Glen Coulter's plans is not having versatile Andy Frostenson (6-1, 155), a junior punter who received state postseason honors in 1987, available in more positions. For now a groin pull will limit the youngster to kicking duties. A position in which he'll be backed by Rob Tupper (5-8, 140) a sophomore.

Quarterback Aric Frostenson (6-1, 160), running back Jasper Funkhouser (5-7, 130), both seniors, and Eddie Harness (6-2, 150), a sophomore end, are back in starting spots and the addition of Gooding transfer Tim Yore (6-0, 155), a senior end, provides additional experience.

On the interior line, only senior Ben Rast (6-6, 165) has seen considerable playing time. Junior Eric Stewart (6-8, 130) joins Rast at guard and 6-1, 170-pound soph Clint Wolf will snap the ball.

Kit Barron, Courtney Smith, Funkhouser and Aric Frostenson lend seasoning to Coulter's 4-2-2 defense. Yore, Rast and Jerry Dillard will plug

Coulter will look for depth from Thad Lee (5-8, 145), a sophomore guard, freshmen Jason Coulter (5-6, 130) and Ryan Smith (5-8, 135), both ends, and Richard Delodge (5-7, 135), a defensive back.

Rockland

Steve May has been at Rockland for 11 years now and last season had to have been among the more enjoyable.

After suffering a 22-18 defeat at the hands of Richfield in their second outing, May's Bulldogs ran off six straight victories, including a 30-18 defeat of the Tigers before losing the state title game.

Those triumphs, though, were pretty much the handiwork of some 10 seniors. May (51-42 at Rockland) finds himself with five lettermen — only three part-time starters return to try and move the ball.

The toughest deficit is, of course, the graduation of four all-state linemen — two each on offense and defense from the 87 squad.

The good news is that Casey Lesley (5-10, 140) stepped in as signal caller two years back and has never stepped out. He can read defenses and may be the alignment's best passer as well. Identical twins Trent and Matt Riggs (each 5-10, 150), move over from guard and linebacker, respectively, to carry the ball.

Except for offensive guard Ron Stilwell (6-1, 170) — one of an unusually small junior class — it's all sophomores through the balance of the roster with Ruben McLann (5-8, 140) and one-year letterman John Howell (5-11, 150) as receivers, Allen Woodworth (5-7, 150) at center and big Lalo Hidalgo (6-1, 230) in the other guard spot.

Tigers hold off T.F. comeback

Jerome wins for second straight year

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

JEROME — Experience had its own reward for the Jerome Tigers Thursday night as the veteran crew pulled itself together and topped the Twin Falls Bruins, 33-30, in the season opener for both teams.

It was the second straight win for the Tigers in the series that has spread over about 65 years but not a lot of games.

This one was a matter of a young team playing an experienced one and, as most predicted, the experience won out.

The Tigers were able to exploit Twin Falls' defense with timely Ron Ruhter passes — key ones to speedy John Gourley — and not until late in the game did the Bruins learn to stop the "Tigers' misdirection plays, sparked by the running of Allen Enos.

At one point the Tigers held a 27-7 lead but Twin Falls, capitalizing on a kickoff fumble recovery, put the fun back into the game with two touchdowns in 29 seconds. Less than seven minutes into the final quarter, Jerome rebounded with a 24-yard drive after a short Bruin punt and return by Clark Baumgartner and that was enough to win it.

The young Bruins came back with their final score two minutes left and Jerome then gave up a safety with four seconds left to nail it down.

"I think we played hard and we played to win," said new Coach Greg Trenary. "The thing is, Twin Falls was full of juniors and it is a good football team."

Trenary said the pass-catch combination of Ruhter-to-Gourley was critical, noting "John made some great catches for us. When we had to have first down, he got it taken care of. We just asked our kids to find a way to win and they did."

Bruin Coach Jon Jund, who led Jerome to a state title three years ago, sustained his second loss and is 0-2 against his former team.

"We made junior mistakes and we expected to see those," Jund said. "But the disappointing thing is it appeared we were getting those same halfhearted efforts we were getting a year ago. I told the seniors that if they weren't ready to produce, we would move a junior in ahead of them. That might seem cold but our coaching staff's jobs are on the line."

Jerome's Scott Lee fights for extra yardage as a Twin Falls defender swarm around him in Thursday night's game.

Jund said his fears of less than a strong senior effort came when "one of our starting defensive linemen, a 270-pounder, missed the bus and didn't even play tonight. With that kind of attitude he probably wouldn't have helped anyway."

Jund also suggested that the Bruins showed a propensity for turning to the pass at the first sign of adversity. "Yes, a couple of times we thought something was open but we couldn't get the ball to the guy. In retrospect, it probably would have been better to keep the ball on the ground. We had momentum a couple of times."

One example of that came just after that 29-second, 13-point blitz that hauled the Bruins to within 27-20. They forced a Jerome punt and from their own 18 had runs of 19, 7 and 9 yards. John Horner then was sacked trying to throw on the next first down and Twin Falls followed that with two incompletions and a punt. That ended the Bruins' offensive thrust and Jerome held sway long enough after that to tuck it away.

Early in the game Twin Falls had two promising drives on the ground, the first ending on a dropped third-down pass at the Jerome 43 and the second when a penalty and another dropped pass led to a missed field goal by Dave McCluskey of 36 yards.

But the Bruins' edge evaporated immediately when, one first down later, Ruhter and Gourley worked their first bomb, this one a 47-yard with 2:13 left. Baumgartner, running out of the hold in a spread formation, got the two-pointers.

The teams traded punts to open the second quarter and on its second possession, Jerome marched goalward again. The payoff this time was a nine-yard end run by Baumgartner but the point-after kick failed.

Just when Twin Falls appeared on the ropes, Horner went to former running-back, now tight end Steve McLaughlin over the middle on a 70-yard Bruin home run. McCluskey converted.

Jerome then ate up most of the second quarter with a nine-play drive that ended when Ruhter scrambled out of an apparent passing play and romped 44 yards.

The Tigers started the second half the same way, moving 66 yards in nine plays on some passes to Baumgartner and Gourley and an 18-yard romp by Enos. An eight-yard flip to Gourley got the six points and the kick failed.

This time Twin Falls rebounded. Horner and Lyle Hudelson got most of the yardage in a 64-yard march with a rolled-out pass to Forrest Ward covering the last nine yards. McCluskey kicked.

On the kickoff, Steve Mitts leveled the Jerome return man at the 25, separating him from the ball and Bruin Ace Marcellus covered at the 24. On the first play Horner lofted a hammer into the end zone and Matt Rasmussen raced under it to make the catch. But Jeff Pedrow blocked the point-after attempt, keeping the Tigers up by seven.

Twin Falls then forced another punt and replied with a drive to midfield before running into three straight misfired passing plays. Jerome came back with a nine-play drive to a first down at the 13 before Aaron Swafford sacked Ruhter, who fumbled and Bruin Brady Stands covered.

But the Bruins couldn't escape the hole and had to punt. Baumgartner returned the short punt to the 24 and three plays after that another Ruhter scramble out of the pocket, this one worth 19 yards, put the ball on the one and Enos belted the winning points across on the next play.

Twin Falls' next possession ended on a Gourley interception but on their next possession, the Bruins popped Hudson open on a 49-yard quick pitch to the one, setting up a one-yard push for Alan Heck.

Final Score:
Jerome 33, Twin Falls 30.
Jerome — Gourley 47 pass from Ruhter (Baumgartner run).
Twin Falls — McLaughlin 70 pass from Horner (McCluskey kick).

Thirteen games kick off prep campaign

By The Times-News

A baker's dozen games, including one of the biggest traditional rivalries in the Magic Valley, will mark the formal beginning of the high school football season tonight.

Jerome started things off Thursday night by beating Twin Falls 33-30 in their annual hillbiller.

Minico will host Burley tonight at 7:30 in the debut of new Bobcat coach Jeff Savage and his run-and-shoot offense. Both teams are coming off two-victory seasons in 1987 and running behind new quarterbacks, juniors Jason Allen for Burley and Travis Schow for Minico.

Across the Magic Valley, Glenna Ferry will host Rimrock of Bruneau, the No. 4-ranked Class A-4 team in the preseason Associated Press poll, in something of a grudge match at 7:30. The Raiders handed the Pilots, the eventual Canyon Conference champions, their only regular-season loss in last year's season-opener, 2-0. Oakley, the No. 1-ranked team in A-4 in the AP preseason poll, will visit Declo for their traditional cross-county season-opener at 7:30 p.m. while Richfield — No. 1 in the eight-man preseason poll — is scheduled to host Camas County at 4 p.m. in a game that will count in the Sawtooth Conference standings even though the two teams will play in Fairfield later in the fall.

Elsewhere, Buhl will host Middleton at 8 p.m. in Bowers Field, Wood River will entertain Gooding at 7:30 in Hailey, Castleford's new coach Rod Rutherford and his charges will host Filer at 7:30 p.m. Notus will visit Hagerman at 7, Hansen will take on the Jerome sophomores on the road at 7 p.m. Kimberly will play host to Raft River and new coach Dwight Richins at 7:30 p.m. Valley and Murtaugh will get together in Eden at 7:30 p.m. Shoshone will visit Wendell at the same hour and Carey will play a Sawtooth Conference game at Rockland at 4 p.m.

Jax may be back with Yanks soon

NEW YORK (AP) — The agent for Reggie Jackson said Thursday night he has held discussions with New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner about Jackson's possible return to the club as a player.

Jackson, 42, retired after spending the 1987 season with the Oakland Athletics. He finished his career with 563 home runs, sixth on the all-time list. Jackson played for the Yankees from 1977 until 1981 and helped New York win three American League pennants and two World Series titles.

Bill Goodstein, Jackson's agent, approached Steinbrenner earlier this week. According to Goodstein, Jackson would return for the final month of the season and would make about $100,000 with possible gate incentives.

The Yankees are third in the AL East, 4½ games behind first-place Detroit. "Yes, we have made some inquiries," Goodstein said. "We think the Yankees could use Reggie's winning attitude and his experience in the tough pennant races. He may also be able to bring back some of the glory of past championship Yankee teams."

McCallister crafts lead in breezy World Series

By BOB GREEN
The Associated Press

AKRON, Ohio — Blaine McCallister got away with one and Sandy Lyle didn't let him get away.

"In this wind, on this golf course, a 67, I feel like I stole one," McCallister said after converting a birdie-birdie start into a one-shot lead Thursday in the first round of the $900,000 World Series of Golf.

The fast start, of course, was the key to this 3-under-par effort on the long, hard Firestone Country Club course.

Lyle's round was from the other side of the coin.

The burly Scot who holds the Masters title got away bogey-bogey-bogey, then had to one-putt to save par on the next three holes.

"I wasn't swinging well and everything was wrong," Lyle said, "and at that time I thought if I could scramble in with a 75 I'd be doing well."

But he touched off a string of four consecutive birdies on the ninth hole, where his hooked drive hit a spectator in the back and bounced back into the fairway, and salvaged a 69.

"Bogeyed three in a row. I saved three in a row. I was at rock bottom," Lyle said. "Then it all turned around and I birdied four in a row. A 69 after the start I had, it's a real saved round. It's a bad game sometimes."

Ian Baker-Finch of Australia and Mark Brooks, who like McCallister is making his first appearance in this elite, international event, shared second with 68s.

Ken Brown of Scotland and Jay Haas, who were tied with Lyle at 69, were the only others in the 42-man field able to break par in the strong, gusty winds.

Curtis Strange, the U.S. Open title-holder and the defending champion here, was at 71. So were Joey Sindelar, who leads the money-winning race, and PGA champion Jeff Sluman.

Australian Greg Norman was another shot higher at 72. Tom Watson had a 74 that included a double bogey on the 16th.

McCallister, 29, qualified for this field last month with the first victory of his five-year PGA Tour career.

He hit a 7-iron to four feet for an opening birdie, then used a driver from the fairway to set up a two-putt birdie on the par-5 second hole.

He matched a three-putt bogey on the ninth against a chip-in birdie on the 10th, then took the lead alone with a 15-footer on the 16th.

"I'm playing good. There's three rounds to go. Who knows what might happen," he said.

"After that start," said Lyle, who bogeyed from a bunker, drove into the woods and three-putted, "I'm just delighted to still be in contention."

Steeler patriarch Rooney succumbs at age 87

By Baltimore Sun

PITTSBURGH — Arthur J. Rooney Sr., the patriarch of the Pittsburgh Steelers and the last of the pioneers who helped found pro football, died Thursday at age 87.

A former athlete, promoter and horseplayer, Rooney was described by National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle as a man who "belonged to the entire world of sports."

Although he turned over the day-to-day running of the club to his son, Dan, in recent years, he was still going into his office at Three Rivers Stadium daily until he suffered a stroke eight days ago.

The Chief passed away in his sleep with his family at his bedside," Dr. Theodore Goletz, his personal physician, announced at a news conference that was televised live in Pittsburgh.

With the familiar cigar stuck into a corner of his mouth, he always seemed to have stepped out of the pages of "The Last Hurrah."

He lived almost his entire life within walking distance of Three Rivers Stadium, and Cleveland owner Art Modell said, "When you think of Pittsburgh, it's hard not to think of Art Rooney. The Chief was a gentleman and a gentle man. He was a true sportsman, fierce competitor and one of my dearest friends."

When Rooney founded the Steelers in 1933 after the Pennsylvania blue laws banning Sunday play were lifted, nobody dreamed of Super Sundays and instant replay.

"It was just a hop, skip and a jump from semi-pro ball, maybe just a hop," he once said.

To keep his team alive during World War II, he even merged it one year with the Cardinals and another year with the Eagles.

"The biggest thrill wasn't winning on Sunday, but meeting the payroll on Monday," he often said.

Along with such visionaries as George Halas, Tim Mara of the New York Giants, George Preston Marshall of the Washington Redskins and former Commissioner Bert Bell, he helped nurture the game.

"We could settle every pro football problem in a quick discussion around the table," he once said. "The guys who ran the league were Bert Bell, Tim Mara, George Marshall, George Halas and myself. We ran it pretty well, too."

They never dreamed of the days of million-dollar contracts and $38 ticket prices, but they loved the game.

"When we were struggling to survive, pro football was a fun thing," he once said. "The bigger we got, though, the less fun is in it."

Ernie Accorsi, the former Colts general manager who now runs the football operations for the Cleveland Browns, said, "To me, this is the end of the pioneer era. There's nobody left now. It closes that whole chapter."

Doorslammer attracts 38 ballclubs

By The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — The Falls Brand Doorslammer slowpitch tournament, the traditional season-ending men's softball event in the Magic Valley and one of the largest tournaments in this area, will get under way today at Harmon Park and Frontier Field.

A 38-team field is entered for the three-day event, including many of the top teams from the Magic Valley and ballclubs from Idaho Falls, the Treasure Valley and northern Utah.

There will be competition in A, B and C divisions, a total of 73 games.

The first will take place at 5 p.m. today at Harmon Park. The Doorslammer traditionally attracts a strong field because it is played after the conclusion of district and state tournaments.

MGM Distributing of Salt Lake City, Pepsi Cola of Salt Lake City and Peterson Motors of Ogden, Utah, are the defending champions in the A, B and C divisions, respectively. The best finish by a local team last year was of El Sombrero/Main Car Wash of Twin Falls, which finished second to Peterson Motors in the C division.

Briefly in Sports

Smith wins Ore-Idaho title

BURLEY — Boise's Jean Smith turned it into a rout three holes into the final round of the Ore-Ida Turkey Women's Invitational Thursday and coasted into the championship with a five-under par 143 total.

Smith, who holds the course record here and won a state title on these links, followed her first-day round of 71 with a 72 Thursday while Caldwell's Sue Kushlan maintained her second-place status earned with a 74 Wednesday and a 78 Thursday.

Under the format of this tournament, which by attracting 157 women this year now is probably second only to the state amateur in size and scope, Smith wins the championship and the best gross award. The best net honors of the field were taken in a playoff by Mountain Home's Juanita Clark in a playoff against Twin Falls' Janet Cummings after they had tied at 129.

Smith entered the final round with a three-stroke lead on Kushlan and then watched that mushroom to six on the third hole when Smith birdied and Kushlan had a double-bogey six.

Other final division winners include:

First Flight — Jean Smith, Burley, 115; Debbie Anderson, Twin Falls, 138; and Beth Anderson, Caldwell, 139.
Second Flight — Gail Folsom, Twin Falls, 154; Mildred Lynch, Burley, 181; Hilda Fast and Betty Rose, both 144; and Pat Taylor, Burley, and Norma Ward, Burley, both 147.

Meridian swept through the triangular at 2-0, topping Wood River 15-10, 15-10 and Idaho Falls 15-12, 15-9. Idaho Falls then ran its record to 1-1 by beating the Wolverines 15-13, 15-4.

Newsday

NEW YORK — Mitch "Blood" Green dropped his legal fight against Mike Tyson Thursday in hopes of getting a title fight early next year.

Yankees fall 4 1/2 games behind Detroit

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Rob Deer hit his 17th homer and drove in three runs and Teddy Higuera pitched a three-hitter for his fourth straight win as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the New York Yankees 4-1 Thursday.

The loss, in a game that was a makeup of an Aug. 4 rainout, dropped the Yankees 4 1/2 games behind Detroit and 2 1/2 games behind Boston in the American League East.

Deer, who missed two games this week with a sore shoulder, hit a two-run homer off Rich Dotson, 9-7, to cap a three-run first after the Yankees had taken a 1-0 lead.

He doubled in Robin Yount, who had walked, with Milwaukee's fourth run in the third.

Higuera, 11-8, retired the final 19 batters he faced and dropped his earned-run average to 2.41, second lowest in the American League. He walked one and struck out nine to improve his career record against the Yankees to 9-2.

Don Mattingly singled for the Yankees in the first, moved up on a balk and scored on an RBI single by Clark that broke his 0-for-20 slump.

Jim Gantner and Yount singled in the first and after a forceout, Gantner scored from third on a double steal as Greg Brock moved from first to second. It was the second straight game the Brewers had scored in the first inning on a double steal.

Deer then followed with his homer to left to make it 3-1.

Chicags 6 Atlanta 1

ATLANTA (AP) — Calvin Schiraldi

pitched an eight-hitter and struck out a career-high 12 batters as the Chicago Cubs beat the Atlanta Braves 6-1 Thursday night.

Schiraldi, 8-8, suffered a leg injury in New York on Aug. 4 and went on the disabled list until Aug. 20. It was his second complete game and he has 109 strikeouts in 127 1/3 innings.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the third on Ryne Sandberg's 13th homer on a pitch from starter German Jimenez, 1-5.

Chicago made it 2-0 in the fourth when Vance Law hit a one-out single, went to second on first baseman Gerald Perry's error and scored on Shawon Dunston's single.

After singles by Sandberg, Mark Grace and Andre Dawson loaded the bases with one out in the fifth, Rafael Palmeiro walked to force in a run. Jody Davis then singled home two more runs for a 5-0 lead.

The Braves got a run in the bottom of the fifth on Dale Murphy's RBI single after singles by pinch-hitter Jerry Royster and Ken Oberkell.

Chicago added a run in the seventh on Palmeiro's RBI single.

The loss dropped the Braves to 43-84, worst in the major leagues.

Cincinnati 4 St. Louis 1

CINCINNATI (AP) — Keith Brown

allowed four hits for seven innings in his major-league debut Thursday night to lead the Cincinnati Reds past the St. Louis Cardinals 4-1.

Brown, 24, allowed a pair of first-inning singles and then held St. Louis hitless until the sixth, when Willie McGee hit a solo homer, his third, without error.

Brown struck out three and walked two as he completed the jump from Class AA to the majors in one season. He made just 12 starts for the Reds' Class AAA Nashville farm club before his callup.

John Franco pitched two innings for his 27th save.

The victory was the Reds' eighth in their last 12 games, pushing them four games over .500 for the first time this season.

Cardinals starter Greg Matheis, 2-4, allowed three hits in 4 1/3 innings, but he walked six to help the Reds score four runs.

Barry Larkin opened the Reds' first with a triple and scored on Dave Collins' ground out. Cincinnati scored two more runs with just one hit in the fourth, when Eric Davis walked, stole his 30th base and scored on Nick Esasky's single. A balk and Dave Concepcion's fly ball sent Esasky to third, and Ron Oester's sacrifice fly brought him home.

The Reds loaded the bases in the fifth on a pair of walks by Mathews and one by reliever John Costello. Concepcion's infield single scored a two-out run.

Mathews has lost both of his starts since returning from the disabled list last month. He was sidelined from May 15 to Aug. 15 with a sore shoulder. Mathews hasn't won a game since May 4.

Mayes agrees to end holdout with Saints

By The Associated Press

Rubeen Mayes was due back in camp for the New Orleans Saints after walking out in a contract dispute. But Mayes' return wasn't a topic Coach Jim Mora seemed anxious to discuss.

"I don't know how much practice time he'll get, how he'll look in practice, whether he's well from his injury, whether he's rusty," Mora said Thursday in declining to say whether Mayes, who has an injured shoulder, will play in an exhibition game against Pittsburgh on Saturday.

Pro football

"I doubt that he will play. But I may say that and play him 60 minutes," Mayes agreed to return Wednesday evening, but only after being told he might be put in the "reserve-left camp" category that would isolate him for the season and make his 1988 contract carry over until 1989.

That contract gives him a base salary of $175,000, fourth-highest among Saints running backs despite his having been a Pro Bowl pick after each of his two seasons in the league.

Mayes said he would return, play his best and then demand a trade after fulfilling the terms of his contract.

"I have no future with the Saints," he said.

Mora said his evaluation of Mayes' will not be clouded by the walkout. "He returns right where he left," he said.

When he left on Aug. 15, Mayes was the No. 2 tailback behind Dalton Hilliard. Mayes was being eased back into action after undergoing off-season surgery on his left knee. He had two carries against Phoenix in the second exhibition game and did not play in the opener at Minnesota.

Fleet Flutie

Scout Flutie, who has shown his scrambling ability at quarterback, may put that ability to use as a punt returner when the New England Patriots play Cincinnati Friday night.

"The only question is it will have the guts enough to try it," said assistant coach Dante Scarnecchia, who approached Flutie with the suggestion earlier this week. "This may be another way he can help the football team, a better way than just standing on the sideline with a headset on his head, waiting for something to happen."

Flutie seemed enthusiastic. "My initial reaction was, 'Why not?'" he said. "I figure a lot of guys my size have been doing it for years."

Boomer Boom

Coach Sam Wyche of Cincinnati, who often has had differences with quarterback Boomer Esiason, says he believes Esiason may be ready for his best season.

"He should climb to the top of his game this year. His accuracy is much improved, as is his reliability in terms of going to the open receiver," Wyche said Thursday.

"His judgment in terms of scrambling is much better. Last year, I used to pull my hairs out when he would go one yard past the line of scrimmage and then throw a bomb. Five-yard penalty. His command of the huddle has always been excellent. His job is that of a top executive. So many people depend on you."

However, Esiason has already irked the Bengals' front office. On Tuesday he showed up wearing jersey No. 50 to protest the release of his threw two touchdown passes to Ricky Nattiel before leaving the game with a strained right shoulder, leading the Denver Broncos past the Indianapolis Colts 21-20 Thursday night in an NFL preseason finale.

The Broncos, who concluded the preseason 3-1, also got a 4-yard scoring run by Gerald Wilkitts in the final quarter to cap a 17-play, 80-yard drive and give Denver a 21-13 lead.

Indianapolis' Eric Dickerson, seeing his most extensive action of the preseason, rushed 17 times for 123 yards, including a 67-yard touchdown burst in the third period.

Dean Bascucci caught two field goals, and Albert Bentley kicked a 33-yard TD pass from Jack Trudeau late in the game for the Colts, also 3-1. Bascucci was wide on a 55-yard attempt on the final play of the game.

The Broncos held a 7-6 lead at halftime, driving 70 yards in nine plays for a first-quarter touchdown and withstanding four Indianapolis thrusts into Denver territory in the second quarter.

Elway, whose injury was not believed serious, completed 6-of-6 passes during the first touchdown drive. Vance Johnson had receptions of 11 and 13 yards on the series, and Elway drilled an 11-yard TD pass past three defenders. To Nattiel with 2:26 left in the quarter.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Jim

Kelly hit on nine of 12 passes and threw for a touchdown in one half of action, leading the Buffalo Bills to a 14-7 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers Thursday night in an NFL preseason game.

Kelly passed for 88 yards before leaving at halftime with a slightly sprained ankle. He had returned to action only last week after suffering elbow and ankle injuries during the offseason.

Tampa Bay took a 7-0 lead on its second possession of the first quarter on a 41-yard pass from Vinny Testaverde to Frank Pillow.

The score came three plays after cornerback Bobby Futrell intercepted a Kelly pass and returned it 41 yards to safety Harry Hamilton at the Tampa Bay 48.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Val

Silkenbush scored on an 81-yard punt return and rookie Tony Jeffery had an 80-yard touchdown run to cap off the Phoenix Cardinals' 41-21 victory over former cross-town rival Kansas City Thursday.

Neil Lomax completed 12 of 15 passes for 92 yards while playing the first half. He and Cliff Stoudt each threw touchdown passes for the Cardinals, who finished the preseason 1-4 by beating the Chiefs in their first visit to Missouri since moving from St. Louis.

Stoudt came on in the second half and drove Phoenix 75 yards to a 28-21 lead, finishing the drive with a 10-yard pass to Jay Novacek with 7:40 left in the period.

After Al Del Greco kicked a 30-yard field goal, Jeffery ran untouched up the middle for a 38-21 Cardinals lead with 14:16 to play in the game.

GETTING SOME BRAKES

A driver is the first one to know when his brakes need maintenance or repair. The car may pull to either side when the brakes are applied, or the brakes may not stop the car as well as they once did. If the brakes are suspect, try pushing the brake pedal down. The brake pedal should not have to go more than half way to the floor before it meets resistance. Nor should the brakes have a mushy feel to them. This often indicates the presence of air in the brake lines. Also, the brake pedal should not continue to go downward past the floor after it hits its supposed maximum resistance point. This, and any of the above-mentioned symptoms, indicates a need for brake repair.

Libertarians work area to gain spot on ballot

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — By Tuesday, Gary Rush will have explained his purpose at least 1,800 times to K mart shoppers.

"Ma'am, are you a registered voter in Idaho?" he asks politely in his quick, clipped, back-East voice and holds out his clipboard.

"This petition gives the Libertarian Party the right to be on the ballot in November. You're not endorsing us, voting for us or changing your political affiliation. This just gives us the right to be on the ballot."

If Rush and 17 other Libertarian Party workers can gather the signatures of 8,222 registered Idaho voters by Aug. 30, the name Ron Paul will appear on the November ballot here next to George Bush and Michael Dukakis.

The party also will have the right to hold a state convention and nominate candidates for state offices.

It would not be the first time. The party first gathered enough signatures to make the state ballot in 1976 when it fielded Roger McBride for president. But in 1986, when the party had no candidates to list, the secretary of state dropped it from the list of parties automatically on the ballot.

The party has never won a state office in Idaho and national candidates have failed to gather more than 1 or 2 percent of the vote.

The party doesn't expect to do much better this year, Rush said. But that's not the point.

"We want to start a grassroots movement," he said. "We want the Democrats and Republicans and other people to know there is a third choice on the ballot."

Wednesday, Rush worked the shoppers outside K mart for 6½ hours, coming up with 234 signatures. Thursday, he had 40 more signatures by 11 a.m.

Libertarian party worker Gary Rush, right, speaks to Twin Falls resident Reva Mason Thursday evening at K mart

He hopes to have 1,500 by Tuesday. Only one person out of five refuses to sign, he said. Nancy Chidichimo knew nothing about the Libertarian Party. "They're not really strange, are they?" she asked. But she agreed to sign.

Regardless of their philosophy, "they have a right to be on the ballot," she said.

"I think everyone should have the right to be represented," said Ray Pruett of Twin Falls.

Dave Hobson said he planned to vote for Bush, but that didn't mean the Libertarians couldn't field a candidate.

Ketchum man loses Death Row appeal bid

The Associated Press
and The Times-News

BOISE — Former Ketchum resident Mark Aragon, sentenced to death six years ago for the death of an infant girl whose head he slammed against a bathtub, lost an earlier appeal on Thursday.

The Idaho Supreme Court unanimously rejected Aragon's petition for post-conviction relief, ruling against his claim that his attorney didn't properly represent him. In so doing, the Supreme Court upheld an earlier decision of Fifth District Judge Daniel Hurlbutt.

It's the second time the court has rejected appeals from Aragon, 40, who has been on Idaho's Death Row since 1982.

MARK ARAGON
Lost appeal bid

Aragon was charged with causing the April 1982 death of 8-month-old Monique Longoria by taking her heels and slamming her head against a bathtub in a Ketchum apartment. Aragon, a native of Grand Junction, Colo., was sharing the apartment with the baby's mother, Teresa Walton, of Burley.

The baby suffered severe skull injuries and was taken to a Utah hospital, where she died two days after the April 10 attack.

In 1984, the Supreme Court rejected Aragon's direct appeal.

In his petition for post-conviction relief, Aragon contended that his court-appointed attorney, Robert Falowfield, didn't do an effective job of representing him.

In a key portion of the appeal, Aragon argued that his attorney should have allowed him to testify on his own behalf.

However, Hurlbutt concluded that nothing in the record established that Aragon would have testified if offered the opportunity, that he wanted to or that his attorney had denied him that opportunity.

Jaggers prosecutor leaving post

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Joel Horton, the lead prosecutor on the Jesse Ray Jaggers first-degree murder case, is leaving the Twin Falls County prosecutor's office to take a position with the Ada County prosecutor's office.

Horton, 28, said his long-term career goals as a prosecutor are the reason he is leaving Twin Falls. "There isn't much room for upward mobility here," he said.

"I'm going to miss him desperately," said County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter. "He's one of my best attorneys."

With Horton's departure, Baxter will lead the prosecution of the 18-year-old Jaggers. Jaggers is charged with the May 13 murder of Virginia Westergren, 79. He also faces several other felony charges in connection with the case.

JOEL HORTON
Taking Ada County job

"The Westergren homicide was about the most vivid impression you could have from a single case," Horton said.

Horton also led the charge when the prosecutor's office was defending its use of two grand juries last year to process several drug indictments.

Several defense attorneys challenged those indictments in a highly contested series of legal maneuvers.

Two district judges threw out 21 indictments from a grand jury meeting in June after ruling the county's jury-selection procedure was illegal.

Prosecutors called a second grand jury and indicted 17 people in October. Many of those indictments were similar to indictments from the first grand jury.

Although 5th District Judge Daniel Hurlbutt threw out two of those indictments, most of the defendants either pleaded guilty or were convicted.

Horton said grand juries have a future in Twin Falls.

"There is real potential for future use of grand juries in limited settings," Horton said. "Look at Canyon County and Ada County — what they're doing with the grand jury is probably the appropriate use."

"That appropriate use is for long-term, continuing investigations, especially involving sensitive witnesses, such as undercover narcotics officers and victims of sexual abuse," Horton said.

He defends using the two grand juries because witnesses included confidential informants and undercover narcotics officers involved in continuing investigations.

Baxter said Horton's move is "a symptom of a problem that's been existing to solve."

"What we need is the flexibility to move people up to salaries commensurate with other prosecutive offices, the U.S. attorney's office and other similar government agencies," Baxter said. "Until we get there, see PROSECUTOR on Page C2."

Jerome inventor not giving up Motorola suit

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The attorney for Jerome man suing Motorola Communications and Electronics Inc. says he isn't giving up the fight against the communications giant even though a 5th District judge has dismissed the case.

Fifth District Judge George Granata Jr. said Michael Dahmer, an electrical engineer from Jerome, has no satisfactory explanation for not promptly pursuing the case after filing it three years ago.

"The record in this case is a testament of delay," Granata wrote.

"I was surprised," said David Thompson, Dahmer's attorney. "We respectfully disagree with the Honorable George Granata's decision."

Thompson wouldn't reveal his plans, other than to say he planned to pursue the case. But the Jerome lawyer remained optimistic.

"Obviously, we wouldn't appeal if we didn't think we could succeed," he said.

Dahmer filed his suit in September 1985, but didn't serve papers on Motorola until a year later.

The case spent a year and five months in U.S. District Court before making its way back to Jerome County. The case was assigned to Granata.

Dahmer alleged that Motorola stole one of his inventions, a device that scrambles radio-telephone talk. He asked for $5 million in damages and an order to stop Motorola, a conglomerate with a 1986 sales of $5.9 billion, from selling his product.

After hiring Thompson, he asked to amend his complaint, and increase damages to $100 million.

The case's delay harmed Motorola, Granata ruled, because Dahmer couldn't remember key conversations at a deposition earlier this year and because key witnesses have left Motorola's employ. Dahmer's recollections about conversations and conduct is "very important" to the case, Granata ruled.

Dahmer is the primary stockholder of Systems Associates Inc. In 1984, he ran second to state Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls, in a three-way race in District 25.

The Times-News was unable to reach Dahmer Thursday.

Twin Falls infant born under a lucky 'Star'

TWIN FALLS — Go to the supermarket, pick up the Aug. 30 Star and scan pages 16 and 17. You'll find Fergie, Di, little Prince Harry and ... Lorrie Oliver of Twin Falls?

About five colorful inches southeast of the Princess of Wales, Oliver is pictured holding her baby, Tawnya Lynn, one of eight lucky tots born 8/8/88 who were showcased in the tabloid.

Tawnya Lynn shares newsworthy this week with the public's more customary fare of Crystal Gayle's new heartbreak, Liz Taylor's drug problem and John Denver's Rocky Mountain wedding.

"We knew about this for two weeks, but we didn't tell anyone," said Oliver, 28, an Idaho State Police dispatch supervisor. "We said, 'This has to be a hoax.' Then, when they sent a photographer here from Minnesota, we thought maybe this isn't a hoax after all."

Beatrice, Princess of York, daughter of Fergie and Prince Andrew, was also born 8/8/88. Numerologists and Chinese philosophers say being born on a date with all eights is a sign of good fortune, or so reports the Star.

"At the time, we didn't know it was a lucky day," said Oliver, who went into labor five hours before the midnight hour. "Everybody kept telling me to hang on, to hang on and I didn't know what they

The main parade will line up at the parking lot of M & W Markets and is set for 11 a.m. Ribbons will be awarded to the best entries.

At noon in the City Park, the Wendell American Legion will serve barbecued beef dinners, priced at $4 for adults and $2 for children.

At 1 p.m., Debbie Gläuner's Dance Troupe will perform in the park and a horseshoe tournament, directed by Henry Reid, will begin at the lot west of the Wendell Park Center. For more information, call Reid at 324-2201.

Also at 1 p.m., a tennis tournament will begin. For more information or to sign up, call Pat Mathers at 536-2552.

At 1:30, the Old-Time Fiddlers will entertain in the park.

At 3 p.m., judges of the beard contest will give ribbons to the oldest, newest and ugliest beards.

At 3:15, Basque Dancers will perform. These youths, descended from the Basque immigrants of Spain and France, are from all over the Magic Valley.

At 4:15, Votray, a family trio, will play some rock 'n' roll music. Terry Votroubek, a singer and guitar player, performs with his two sons Scotty Beau, 12, the bass player, and Dusty Joe, 10, the drummer. "We can play about anything," Votroubek says. The trio, which started two years ago, has a repertoire of about 60 songs.

At 4:30, local recording artist Ernie Sites will perform around the park as a strolling, guitar-playing minstrel.

Roger Brown, a Wendell realtor and one of several Ag-Days organizers, says the parade will have four Grand Marshals. All are long-time Wendell residents, they are Willa Caldwell, 94, Cora Frith, 95, Walter Stockham, 92, and Everett Campbell, 86.

Brown says these Grand Marshals will ride in a horse-drawn buggy and a classic touring car. Frith, he noted, has lived in Wendell since 1909.

The parade will be led by an honor guard from Mountain Home Air Force base. The guard also is bringing a Mini F-111, a replica of a fighter plane.

Brown says other entries will include commercial floats, drill teams, bands, riding clubs, antique cars, Shriners and Amstar homes. Ev-

Baine groups join economic forces

By BARBARA NEIWERT
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Blaine County and the Wood River Valley communities have joined forces to work toward strengthening their economic development through the state's Gem Communities Program.

Blaine County, Ketchum, Sun Valley, Hailey and Bellevue have all passed resolutions this month identifying REAP, the Regional Economic Action Project, as the lead organizational body for the project. REAP is a citizens' advisory group of business leaders and members of the political sector formed to increase public awareness of the area.

These communities, as one group, have submitted an application to become a state-designated Gem Community. Twin Falls is the only other Magic Valley city as of this week to submit an application. The deadline is Sept. 2.

Sponsored by the Idaho Department of Commerce, the Gem Communities Program is designed to give Idaho rural communities and small towns training and technical assistance to encourage economic development, program Coordinator Galen Schuler said.

A series of four training sessions will be presented, helping each community put together a strategy which addresses long range economic planning goals. The communities will then need to be state certified.

Certification has its benefits. It means $1,000 in matching funds for implementation of their strategies, additional planning points for cities seeking community development block grants and recognition in the form of press releases, advertising by the state in a national publication and identification of the state's Gem communities in a brochure it sends out in response to business inquiries, Schuler said.

Schuler sees an advantage to the Blaine County communities pulling together. It saves the state money, the cities are integrally involved in the economic welfare of one another and it generates better involvement, he said.

The county's administrative assistant Chuck Corwin said as it stands now, each Wood River Valley community has no force or effect. "If it works right, everyone will work together rather than doing their own thing," Corwin said.

Buhl police recover goods

BUHL — Police recovered several items stolen during a recent burglary spree and zoomed in on a 14-year-old suspect Wednesday evening.

Buhl Police Chief Les Cochran said five stolen items were recovered at the suspect's home. The teen-ager and his parents live in Buhl.

Other items were also found, and police are contacting burglary victims to see whether they can identify any of the remaining property.

The identified items were stolen both from businesses and automobiles, Cochran said. Six Buhl businesses were burglarized within five days, starting Aug. 18.

Cochran said police have been looking for the teen-age suspect since Wednesday.

"He looks like he's 19, and he acts like a two-time penitentiary loser," Cochran said. "He's real hard-core."

Car thief leaves car burned

KETCHUM — A 1982 Audi 5000 came to a bad end Thursday at the hands of a thief evidently bent on destruction.

The car, stolen in Ketchum sometime during the night, was found Thursday at the foot of a hill — both charred and mangled.

"It looks like they pushed it over a hill and then went back and lit it on fire," said Tom Parker, deputy with the Blaine County Sheriff's Department.

The car, described by Parker as "extremely totaled," was destroyed near Trail Creek Summit, roughly 12 miles east of Ketchum. No arrests have been made.

Bureau looks for census help

POCATELLO — The U.S. Census Bureau is recruiting 185 temporary workers from throughout the state to aid in preparing an address list for the 1990 Census of Population and Housing.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens 18 or over and will be required to take a written test. The project is expected to last between two and eight weeks.

For further information on applying for these positions, contact Suzanne Jones at 232-7612, or write the U.S. Census Bureau, care of Idaho State University, Maintenance Operation Building No. 18, Sixth and Humbolt, Pocatello.

ISU seeks budget hike for upkeep, salaries

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — Money for building maintenance and salary equity to Idaho State University's wish list for the fiscal year 1989 funding increase for the fiscal year that begins next July.

ISU and Idaho's three other state-supported universities and college will make their budget requests to the State Board of Education at a special meeting Sept. 1 in Pocatello.

On Wednesday, the University of Idaho made its pitch for an 8.1-percent increase. Boise State University has said it will seek 17.8 percent more funding in fiscal 1990.

"This is just the letter-to-Santa Claus side of the thing," ISU President Richard Bowen said Thursday.

The Pocatello university is seeking more than $5 million in new money from this year's budget, which totals about $31 million. ISU's appropriation for fiscal 1989, which began July 1, is 4.8 percent higher than during the previous spending year.

And even though the increase was greater than those received by UI, BSU or Lewis-Clark State College, Bowen said it still represented only a "maintenance budget."

Chief among next year's needs, he said, are money for salary equity, improvements at the Eli Oboler Library and preventative maintenance projects.

"We need salary money this year," Bowen said. "A couple of years ago we got a pretty good boost and that was awful good for morale. We didn't get an awful lot last year."

ISU faculty salaries are an average 6.3 percent below those at "poor" university institutions. Bowen said the university is seeking $550,800 to cut this percentage in half.

He said he expects the state board to direct the school to trim back its initial request, but remained optimistic that higher education funding would be improved next year.

California man nabbed for murder

BOISE (AP) — A California man accused of killing his wife has been arrested in Boise, the Ada County Sheriff's Department reported.

James Lee Jensen, 30, of San Diego, was arraigned Wednesday on fugitive and first-degree murder charges. An extradition hearing was scheduled for next Wednesday.

Sgt. Brent Cornwall said Jensen was arrested about 2:35 a.m. MDT Wednesday in front of the Ada County Public Safety Building. He was being held without bail in the Ada County Jail on Thursday.

Cornwall said Jensen is a suspect in the stabbing death of his wife in their housing complex at Miramar Naval Air Station in San Diego earlier this week. Officials learned Jensen was en route to Idaho to visit his mother and stepfather in Eagle.

Miller said this particular animal apparently lived about 136 million to 138 million years ago, during the late Cretaceous or early Jurassic period.

"It's at the boundary line. I think we're probably dealing with the early Cretaceous period," Miller said.

"Dinosaurs have been a hot item for quite a while. To find the longest ever found it quite exciting," Miller said. "It will tell us more about their structure, how did they get that big and how did they live on land."

Miller said the find is significant because it could help scientists better understand the earth.

The Star photographer came a few days later — all the way from the Land of 10,000 Lakes — and clicked about 60 pictures of Oliver and Tawny. But not before Oliver, ever wary, first called the Star and verified his Supersaurus were plant eaters with long necks and tails. Their hind legs were longer than their front legs, indicating to paleontologists that the animals ate leaves from high tree branches.

Booster seals worked in test

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Despite a salt lake debris flaws, redesigned space shuttle booster seals prevented super-hot gases from escaping during a crucial test-firing of the rocket, Morton Thiokol Inc. says.

The findings of the on-going detailed analysis of the test, conducted Aug. 18 at the aerospace company's northern Utah plant 25 miles west of Brigham City, may have been the most reassuring yet for the nation's manned space flight program.

Morton Thiokol spokesman Ed Snow said Thursday that engineers had completed disassembling of the rocket's aft segment.

"They looked at the intentional flaws and were very pleased to see that hot gases had not blown by the primary O-ring, that it had sealed properly," he said.

The success of last week's test, the fifth and final qualifying firing of the new 125-foot-long solid-fuel booster, was vital to NASA's plans to resume shuttle missions grounded after the Jan. 28, 1986, Challenger disaster.

Leaking gases from a faulty seal on one of Challenger's boosters was blamed by a presidential commission for the space shuttle's explosion during launch. Seven astronauts died when the gases ignited the shuttle's exterior fuel tank.

Snow said NASA and Morton Thiokol engineers will continue to tear down the next-generation rocket over the next week and a half, if the positive evaluation of the test holds.

NASA officials have said they expect to set a firm date in late September or early October for the first shuttle flight since the Challenger accident.

Earlier this week, Morton Thiokol workers completed the first stage of evaluating the test-firing with disassembly of the booster's nozzle section.

"Engineers found no problems, declaring it the best nozzle yet," spokesman Rocky Raab said.

The bone "exceeds anything we've found to this point," Miller said. When the surrounding rock is removed, the fossil will weigh about 1,500 pounds, officials said.

Miller said the supersaurus may have descended from the diplodocus, which was estimated to have been heaviest, he said.

On Aug. 18, workers in the Dry Mesa Quarry in western Colorado discovered the massive fossil of a pelvis and several vertebrae they believe are from a supersaurus.

Oliver's husband, Kent, also works for the ISP, as a corporal. The family's appearance in the tabloid has been a big hit at Twin Falls headquarters.

She added, "When a baby is born here, it's like part of a family. We all bask in the glory. Everybody is real tickled."

The tabloid's picture spread includes snapshots of five members of the royal family. Well, you'd better make that six, at least if you ask Oliver.

Sleepwalking becomes family issue

DEAR ABBY: I've been in the U.S. Navy for 13 years. Last year I was a Navy recruiter. My brother's son was considering joining the Navy when he graduated from high school last year.

It is a well-known fact in our family that this nephew is a sleepwalker, so I told my brother and his wife that their son was not enlistment-eligible. His mom asked me to "overlook" the fact that her son was a sleepwalker, and I told her there was no way I would jeopardize my Navy career and her son's life by overlooking something like that.

If my sleepwalking nephew were to join the Navy without acknowledging that he was a sleepwalker, he could very well sleepwalk right over the side of his ship at sea, or if he were assigned to an aircraft carrier, he could walk into a piece of machinery and get killed.

Furthermore, if it became known that his recruiter knew of his condition and suppressed it, the recruiter could be court-martialed.

My nephew was all for keeping his sleepwalking a secret, but I would have no part of it, so he's not in the Navy. My conscience is clear and I know I did the right thing; but my family has been very cool to me and my wife, and we feel terrible about this.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Now I hear that this sleepwalking nephew wants to enlist in the Air Force. Is there anything I should do?

— TRUE TO THE NAVY

DEAR TRUE: If your nephew is man enough to defend his country, he should be man enough to speak for himself.

Talk with him, man-to-man, and impress upon him the importance of being 100 percent truthful about his sleepwalking. Tell him that if he either lies or knowingly withholds this information on his application or during his physical, he could be liable for a stiff fine and possibly a prison term.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you for advice at my age, but I've read your column for years, and have never seen a problem like mine. I need an answer.

What do you tell a bride who calls you after the wedding to tell you that she didn't like the wedding gift you gave her, and she'd like to have the sales slip so she can return it for something else?

Mind you, Abby, the gift was not a duplicate; she just didn't like it. I have the sales slip, but I don't want to give it to her. I think such rudeness deserves to be ignored.

How should I handle this?

— DISGUSTED SENIOR CITIZEN

DEAR DISGUSTED: Tell her the gift is hers to do with what she chooses, but you wouldn't feel comfortable giving her the sales slip, and let it go at that.

—CONFIDENTIAL TO DISGRACED IN CHARLOTTE, N.C.: You cannot be disgraced by anyone but yourself, so hold your head high. Your son disgraced only himself.

Senator accepts denial by Dukakis

BOISE (AP) — Conservative Sen. Steve Symms says he accepts the denial of Michael Dukakis' presidential campaign that Kitty Dukakis ever burned an American flag as a Vietnam War protester.

During a radio call-in program in Boise on Thursday, the Idaho Republican acknowledged that he had no hard evidence to back up the statement he made during another radio program earlier this week that there may be evidence that Mrs. Dukakis burned a flag.

"I did not intend that to become a national issue," Symms said. "The Dukakis campaign has denied it. I'm happy to know Mrs. Dukakis has never burned an American flag. ... I think I'll drop the subject."

Earlier this week, Symms said he had been told that a picture of Mrs. Dukakis burning the flag during a war protest in the 1960s would surface before the November election. He conceded he had not seen the picture. The Dukakis campaign quickly called the statement "totally false and beneath contempt."

"I accept their denial," Symms said.

But the senator also added, "If I were a young enterprising reporter today I would be digging under the Freedom of Information Act. ... If some enterprising reporter comes up with a picture, then I'll rest my case. Otherwise, I'll rest my case now."

Symms' original comment came as Republicans tried to diffuse controversy over the military record of GOP Vice Presidential nominee Daniel Quayle, the Indiana senator who served in the National Guard during the Vietnam War.

During the call-in program Symms was asked several times about the appropriateness of his publicly discussing what he acknowledged might well be only unfounded rumor.

He declined to directly answer those questions, and in response to one caller who compared his comment on Mrs. Dukakis to what Symms termed "sleazy" allegations about his own conduct during his 1986 re-election campaign, the senator simply replied:

"What's good for the goose is good for the gander, I guess."

Symms says Reagan ineffective on deficit

RIGBY (AP) — Sen. Steve Symms says President Reagan's approach hasn't always been good for the nation, especially dealing with the budget and deficits of at least $100 billion every year of his administration.

Symms told Jefferson County Republican Women Wednesday at Rigby that he believes Vice President George Bush would be more effective than Reagan in dealing with the budget deficit.

"For all of his outstanding characteristics ... if there is any room for criticism it is that he doesn't get too involved in the details concerning the operation of the federal budget," Symms said, of the president.

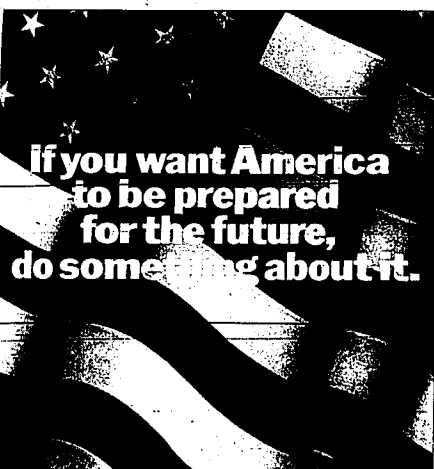

Symms said he was among those "pleading" with Reagan in 1981 to join Democrats in rewriting the formula for entitlements.

"But he wouldn't budge," Symms said. "I said he was not going to break his promise not to cut Social Security. We were not talking about cutting Social Security, but giving less of an increase than the current law would allow."

In foreign policy, Symms said Bush "hits the ground, not having to prove something." But the same can't be said about the Democratic nominee, Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts, he said.

Symms labeled Dukakis as being the most liberal candidate ever to run for the presidency. "I'd rather see Ted Kennedy than Dukakis, because at least Kennedy knows the threat to peace and freedom from the Soviet Union," Symms said.

Soviet women taking home a sour impression of senator

BOISE (AP) — Four Russian women are concluding a peace mission to Boise and they leave with pleasant impressions, except for their meeting with Republican Sen. Steve Symms.

"We met very many kind, hospitable people, except one," said Natalya Virgoush, a poet and journalist from the Ukraine.

Ms. Virgoush and other members of the Soviet group said they were taken aback by comments made by Symms at a luncheon honoring them this week, when he criticized the Soviet economic system.

Ludmila Lanskaya, a teacher from Siberia, said, "We have come to meet Middle America, ordinary people. Sen. Symms is not an ordinary person — he doesn't count."

Symms, a conservative who recently visited the Soviet Union and was one of a handful of senators to vote against the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces Treaty, said in his speech that he meant no offense against the Russian people, but disagreed with their government and economic system.

During a radio-tell-in program in Boise Thursday, Symms reiterated his position, adding that there were many other things he could have said and did not.

"One of the things is the people in the Soviet Union don't work, they literally don't work," the senator said. He contended that his comments were initially accepted by the Soviet visitors, who only began to object to their appropriateness after being encouraged to do so by others "who are softer on communism than I am."

"I wasn't talking to those women," Symms said. "There were 150 of my constituents there and I was asked to report on my experiences."

Ms. Lanskaya said, "He is free to say what he likes to, but he should know the proper place and the proper time ... In my country it would be an insult to guests when you criticize the place they come from in their presence."

She said some may see negative things when they visit the Soviet Union, from poorly supplied stores to a dearth of spare parts for tractors. But, she said, "One sees what he wants to see, that is the thing."

Ms. Lanskaya said her country also has free medical care, paid maternity leave for all mothers, and adequate teacher salaries.

On the whole, the women said, they felt they accomplished their mission, which was to meet other people like themselves. Ms. Virgoush said the visit gave her hope that the United States and Soviet Union can improve their relations.

The four visited Boise as part of a private exchange program called "Soviets, Meet Middle America," sponsored jointly by American and Soviet peace groups. The program, which is taking 400 Americans to the USSR and 400 Soviets to this country, brings ordinary citizens from the two countries together.

Resolution on water survives

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Pressured by Idaho lawmakers, the 13-state Western Legislative Conference has rejected an effort to water down a resolution opposing federal water rights in wilderness areas.

The issue proved to be the major dispute among some 20 resolutions approved by the organization.

The federal government's control of water in wilderness areas generated a resolution calling for repudiation of a Colorado court decision recognizing that right. However, the federal Department of the Interior and the U.S. attorney general's office have issued opinions that counter the court decision.

In large part, the issue in Idaho may be more one of state's rights because wilderness areas are the location of headwaters where few claims for water exist.

But conference members want Congress to pass legislation repudiating the Colorado court decision and to state clearly that the federal reserved water rights do not attach to wilderness areas.

Washington Rep. Mike Todd, D-Auburn, argued to amend the motion because the Colorado court decision was being appealed.

But Idaho Senate President Pro Tem James Risch, R-Boise, said federal reserved water rights on wilderness areas would taint the state's efforts to control its own water.

"This would have a devastating effect on Idaho," Risch said. "It's really important in our state that we have control over our water if we are to control our destiny."

Todd's amendment failed on an 8-2 vote.

In another matter, the conference named Idaho Sen. Mark Ricks, R-Rexburg, as its chairman for the 1988-1989 year. He succeeds Alaska Sen. Bettye Fahrenkamp.

Water plume only memory

BOISE (AP) — The giant rooster tail of water that cooled off motorists below Lucky Peak Dam northeast of Boise is no more with the start-up of a new $80 million power plant.

The last of three generators came on line last week, giving the plant a capacity of 101.5 megawatts for Seattle City Light, said Tom McCready, project manager for Morrison-Knudsen Engineers, Inc., which supervised the building of the new facility.

"It's a beautiful power plant," McCready said. "It will be a real asset to everyone in the valley."

While the Seattle utility will consume the power from the project, four Boise Valley irrigation districts will receive the royalties from the generation and Idaho Power Co. will earn $900,000 a year for carrying the electricity across the state.

The power royalties this summer will reach about $100,000.

In a normal water year, the plant should produce up to 60,000 kilowatts at a flow of 4,500 cubic feet per second, McCready said. Because of the current drought, that generation is down to 35,000 kilowatts at about 3,000 cfs.

Man dies on river

FRUITLAND (AP) — A Fruitland man has died while he was boating on the Snake River, several miles north of Farewell Bend, Ore., authorities said.

Witnesses said Robert Booth, 55, Fruitland, slipped forward in his small aluminum boat Tuesday afternoon and then veered into a rock wall on the river.

It appeared he died of a possible heart attack or stroke, and an autopsy is not planned, said dispatcher Verna Miller of the Idaho State Police.

Persian Gulf war moves to negotiation table

Iran, Iraq open first meeting to end 8-year border conflict

GENEVA (AP) — Iran and Iraq on Thursday opened the first face-to-face negotiations on ending their 8-year-old war and the mediator, U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, voiced hope they would embark on a "path of peace."

Perez de Cuellar welcomed the delegations headed by Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati and his Iraqi counterpart, Tariq Aziz.

"Your presence clearly indicates your governments are quite prepared to pursue the path of peace," he said, adding that he hoped the talks would be "businesslike, constructive and, indeed, productive."

The atmosphere in the ornate U.N. hall was sober. Aziz smiled and nodded at the Iranians when the two delegations entered the "chamber, but there was no reaction."

The delegates numbered 13 on the Iranian side and 15 on the Iraqi side. Perez de Cuellar was flanked by five aides.

The two delegations include political representatives, legal experts, army representatives and officials of relief societies.

U.N. spokesman Francois Giuliani said the meeting was conducted in English, Arabic and Farsi.

After about 2½ hours, the delegations moved into different rooms where U.N. representatives consulted with them separately. Giuliani said he could not provide further details, and added, "It is not a bad sign, nor a good sign. It's a normal process of consultation."

"It was a good discussion," Perez de Cuellar said Thursday night as he announced the talks had ended for the day and would resume Friday. "We covered many points and the two parties want to consult with their governments."

The talks are the first step toward implementing U.N. Resolution 598, which was adopted by the Security Council more than a year ago. It calls on Iran and Iraq to cooperate with the secretary-general in achieving "a comprehensive, just and honorable settlement" of all outstanding issues.

Diplomats have said Iran and Iraq are divided over the agenda of peace talks.

U.N. armed observers scramble to ensure cease-fire at front

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — U.N. military observers scrambled on Thursday to assemble the Iran-Iraq cease-fire despite communications snags, suspicious hosts and uncertainty about the location of minefields.

All of the 350 observers, drawn from 24 countries, were in place by Thursday, U.N. spokesman Saleem Fahmawi said. Communications personnel were expected to establish a radio network "very soon," he said.

Fahmawi said that since the cease-fire took effect Aug. 20, there have been "just minor incidents which have been fully resolved."

But diplomats and other sources said mix-ups over transportation, passports, communications and protocol meant some observers were not in place on Aug. 20.

Those who were in place frequently found themselves with inadequate communications, poor maps and uncertainty about where the minefields were as they patrolled in temperatures often exceeding 110 degrees.

Diplomats and U.N. officials said they rapidly are overcoming the snags the hastily assembled force sent to countries unfamiliar with U.N. procedures, had been expected to face.

Iran and Iraq, both deeply suspicious of outsiders and distrustful of each other, found hundreds of foreign soldiers, some armed, landing at their airports with their own communications equipment.

U.S. C-5A Galaxy transport planes ferried Canadian communications troops to NATO's Incirlik base in Turkey. The jets flew on to Iraq, but shipments to Iran were transferred to Canadian C-130 transports.

The delays caused by the transfers were compounded when Iran initially demanded 48 hours' notice and a complete list of men and equipment on each flight, diplomats said.

Although U.N. troops normally need no passports, diplomats said Tehran demanded them, forcing consular officials to scramble to issue hundreds of new documents.

Palestinians slay informant

JERUSALEM (AP) — Masked Palestinians wielding axes killed an Arab farmer suspected of cooperating with Israel, witnesses said Thursday.

The attacks reflected growing divisions among Palestinians over the future of their 8½-year-old uprising.

Two Israelis, including a 10-year-old boy, were slightly injured when attackers threw a firebomb at an Israeli passenger bus northeast of Jerusalem, police said.

In the West Bank village of Yatta, south of Jerusalem, masked men broke into the home of Saadi Hakez late Wednesday, dragged him outside and hacked him to death with axes, Arab witnesses and state-run Israel radio reported.

Underground leaders have urged Palestinians to halt all cooperation with Israeli authorities, including working for the Israeli military government, and have called for attacks on Palestinians who give Israeli information.

Hazaza, 32, was the third suspected collaborator to be killed since the uprising in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip began Dec. 8. His death brought to 253 the number of Palestinians killed, although most have been killed by Israeli gunfire. Four Israelis also have died.

The army said Hazaza may have been killed as part of a long-standing family feud. But the radio and witnesses who spoke to The Associated Press said he had carried a weapon — a privilege Israeli grants only to Palestinians who provide information to authorities.

When asked who was responsible for the slaying, the village's Israeli-appointed Mayor Ismail Abu Hamid said, "The whole village."

It was the second attack on Hazaza, who was stabbed in Hebron a month ago and released from a hospital three days before his death.

On Wednesday in the northern West Bank village of Aznun, hundreds of villagers stoned two Palestinian brothers suspected of collaborating with Israel as they passed in their car, Israeli radio and Arab witnesses said. Both men escaped.

Palestinians went on strike Thursday for the third time this week to protest the deaths of four prisoners in Israeli jails.

Merchants shut businesses and public transport was halted, but some Palestinians complained and others tried to reach work in Israel. Two dozen were seen at a Jerusalem archaeological site.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said in a message to U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz that Israel would "continue its policy of selective deportations," a Shamir aide said.

Rare caiman skins smuggled to Japan, wildlife group says

TOKYO (AP) — Smugglers used stolen or falsified export documents to ship more than 120,000 skins of a protected species of alligator to Japan in the past seven months, a wildlife protection organization said Thursday.

TRAFFIC Japan, the wildlife trade monitoring group of the World Wide Fund for Nature, said the smugglers shipped South American caiman skins by a complex route involving at least seven South American and Asian countries.

At least 46 tons of the skins from more than 120,000 alligators entered Japan in the first seven months of this year through Thailand alone, the group said.

It said it believed the skins were part of a larger shipment that was loaded onto Asian-bound ships off the coast of Uruguay at the end of last year.

The declared customs value of the skins was about $3.2 million, "but real value would be four to five times more," spokeswoman Cecilia Song said. The skins are used in Japan mainly for belts and watchbands.

Europe needs sky spy, report says

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Western European nations must be prepared to participate in a joint spy satellite program because of increasing work load of American spacecraft, an advisory report said Thursday.

The confidential report by a group of Dutch defense experts was presented to Defense Minister Willem van 't Hof and Foreign Minister Hans van den Broek.

Its main recommendation reflects the Netherlands' increasing efforts to bolster military cooperation in Western Europe, along with the region's economic cooperation.

A major result of such cooperation would be a closer involvement of France in the defense of Western Europe. Although France is a member of the Atlantic Alliance, it does not take part in NATO's integrated military command.

"A truly joint spy satellite program would be important for a number of reasons and the strengthening of the European pillar within NATO would be one of them," a source within the Netherlands' defense establishment told The Associated Press in a Thursday interview. He spoke in exchange for anonymity.

France, Italy and Spain are developing the Helios-espionage satellite, which costs more than $1 billion and is scheduled to be launched in 1992.

"It's far too late (for other European NATO member nations) to get a foot in the door of the Helios project," which began in 1986, said the Dutch source, who is familiar with the contents of the advisory report.

At present, the Dutch armed forces, as well as those of most other allies, are dependent on those American satellite photos that the U.S. government allows to be disseminated, the source said.

"It would be a good thing if the European allies were not too dependent on the Americans in their intelligence-gathering from space and launched their joint satellite in the future," the source said.

The report's recommendations, which have not yet been adopted as official government policy, marked another step on the long road toward closer European military cooperation, a concept strongly favored by the Dutch.

Last year, the Netherlands lobbied for the formation of a Western European naval presence in the Persian Gulf, arguing that Europe has a vital interest in keeping open the area's oil shipping lanes.

At the time, the Dutch were chairing the Western European Union, an informal, seven-nation defense forum including France.

Herrett celebrates Di Bowler

By DENISE TURNER
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — "Some individuals fashion a career out of a single enterprise: artist, actress or dancer; writer or journalist; wife/homemaker/mother; political activist, feminist, or environmentalist; theater manager or producer; teacher or mentor; organizational founder or organizational mainstay. Di Bowler fashioned her career out of all these categories. And she was no dilettante; at all these, she excelled."

These words were written by art enthusiast Jan Boles of Caldwell in honor of his friend, Di Bowler, who died of cancer two years ago. Boles also wrote, "How does one pay tribute to the memory of Idaho's Renaissance Woman?"

That question will be answered, at least in part, on Aug. 30, when the College of Southern Idaho's Herrett Museum Art Gallery opens a show of Bowler's work titled "Di Bowler/A Tribute, an exhibition recognizing the contributions of Di Bowler to the Arts in Idaho."

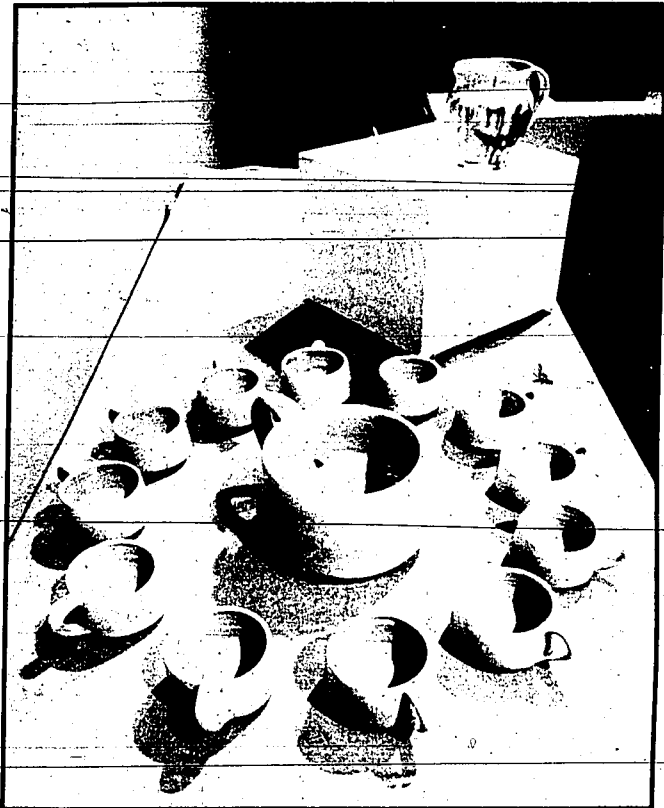

The exhibition, featuring pottery collected by the artist's friends, will continue through Sept. 22.

"As I went around the state collecting Di's work, everyone had a story to go with each individual piece," Herrett Museum Curator Mike Green said. "When these people bought her pottery, it was almost like buying an extension of Di. Green said the artist's work, which has been purchased by people all over the world, is now priceless because it can no longer be replaced."

The Di Bowler exhibit will include her working environment. "We have blown up some photographs of the Bowlers and their home in Bliss which overlooks the Snake River," Green said. The photographs first appeared in a 1948 issue of Mademoiselle magazine along with a feature story on the Bowlers, entitled "We live in Bliss."

Green said the Bowler family lived progressive lives. "We were thinking of solar features even in 1947," said Michael (Dick) Bowler, the man Di married in 1940. "We built our home in 1947 with glass on all sides, and we began generating our own hydro-electric power."

The Bowlers, who eventually became the parents of two children and grandparents of four (now ages 3 to 18) established their pottery studio along the Snake River that same year. They have always dug their own clay.

"We will probably have about two dozen pieces of Di's work on display during the exhibit," Green said. Pieces include a hot wine set with pitcher and cups, baby cups with names, a tiny tea set made for a child, several casserole dishes and a beige and rose place setting — her final piece of work.

"Her work is not only beautiful, but it is very traditional and utilitarian," Green said.

Bowler was born Lillian Dastler in 1920 in Philadelphia. She attended Bennington College in Vermont and completed her studies at the University of Idaho. Along with her husband, who was involved in the theater, she soon became involved in many areas of the arts. She helped found the Idaho Repertory Theater, the Antique Festival Theater and the Idaho Alliance for Arts Education.

Bowler also was an early member of the Idaho Art Association, chaired the advisory board for the Center for New Directions at CSI and was an advisory board member for the new art and architecture college at the U of I. For more than a decade she wrote a column on the arts in Magic Valley for The Idaho Statesman.

"Di was a wonderful person, and it was a joy to see her develop to the mature woman she was," said Jack Sollers, the retired head of the drama department at the College of Idaho in Caldwell. "Di was a good example of women's rights, because she was both a good mother and an excellent craftsman."

A memorial fund recently was established by the Idaho Commission on the Arts in Bowler's name. Within a month after the fund was established, memorial contributions to the fund had grown to more than $1,000.

Green is not surprised. "This should be a very well attended exhibit," he said of the show featuring Di's work. "She was really popular in the Magic Valley."

"Her spirit abides here in the bend of the river, abides in the blue heron who watches as sentinel from the river's far bank, abides in the spirits and deeds of those who loved her best," longtime friend Betty Bidwell said.

The Aug. 30 opening reception honoring Bowler will be from 7-9 p.m. at the museum. Refreshments will be provided by Friends of the Gallery. The Di Bowler exhibit will be on display during regular museum hours from 9:30 a.m.-8 p.m., Tuesday, 9:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m., Wednesday through Friday, and 1-4:30 p.m., Saturday. The museum is closed Sunday, Monday and school holidays.

'Urban Cowboy' Mickey Gilley to perform

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

JACKPOT — It's not easy being the cousin of singer Jerry Lee Lewis and the Rev. Jimmy Swaggart.

But country singer Mickey Gilley says he is doing the best he can.

Gilley, known as "The Urban Cowboy," will perform Sept. 1 and 2 at Cactus Pete's in Jackpot. Tickets are $15, $20 and $25 for various seats.

With a southern drawl from his native Louisiana and his more recent life in Texas, Gilley said during a telephone interview Tuesday he just naturally sounds like his older cousin, Jerry Lee. In the 1950s and 60s, both had a similar style of vocals and honkey-tonk piano playing, but Lewis had fame and wads of hundred dollar bills in his pocket, while his younger cousin endured a "copycat" label, singing in smoky Texas honkey-tonk and lounges.

In 1974, when I finally got a hit," Gilley says, "Room Full of Roses" was a tune that was the same style. I think the only reason why it hit was that Jerry Lee had quit doing that kind of music, so it opened the door for Mickey Gilley. A few years later, the movie "Urban Cowboy" was a national success. With much of the action filmed in Gilley's huge club in Pasadena, Texas, Jerry Lee's shadow at last became a star in his own right.

To perform in Jackpot

Since then, Gilley has scored 17 number-one records, including "Stand By Me," "True Love Ways," "All That Matters to Me,"

"A Headache Tomorrow or a Heartache Tonight," "You Don't Know Me," "Lonely Nights," "Don't the Girls All Get Prettier at Closing Time," "You Really Got a Hold on Me" and "Put Your Dreams Away."

Gilley says these songs gave him a definite style that set him apart from Lewis, who was famous for singing "Grab a Sack of Fire" and "Whole lot of Shakin'."

Now when he performs, Gilley says he feels free to use the old "bluey-type boogie-woogie piano style" without worry of being compared to his piano-thumping cousin. Gilley's more recent singles are "Doo Wah Days," "I'm the One Mama Warned You About," "I'm Your Puppet," and, just out, "She Reminded Me of You." His new album is called "Chasing Rainbows."

On stage, Gilley is backed by an award-winning band of six musicians plus two backup singers. "We try to carry enough (band members) to make the music sound proper," he says.

Talking about his other famous cousin, Jimmy Swaggart, Gilley says the reverend/gospel singer was a good man but, like everyone who is human, he has his problems in life.

"I hope he overcomes it," says Gilley. "I think he's one hell of a preacher. And, of course, if you do what he says and not do what he does, then I guess you can be okay. I mean, I don't really know."

Gilley says he used to have a lot of confidence in Swaggart and, when the news first broke of the evangelist's promiscuity, he thought it was a set-up. "The devil works in mysterious ways," Gilley says.

"I can't throw stones. I can tell you that," he adds. "I lack a long distance of being a saint."

When asked if women ever ask him out, Gilley, a married man, says that sometimes — as friends have candidly pointed out — girls do "make passes" at him.

"But," he says, "I'm so naive when it comes to women that sometimes I don't even pick up on it."

Gilley lives about a half-mile from the massive 48,000 square-foot nightclub that bears his name. He and a partner opened the club in 1970 and, as its fame grew, there was a national boom in the popularity of western clothes, country music and mechanical bull riding.

Gilley freely admits this boom — adjacent rodeo grounds, honky-tonks and "wined-over-the-hoop" — has helped him in the last few years.

"It happened like the hula hoop," he says. "It came on the scene, was big and now is not happening, except in Texas. ... It was a fad. Everybody had a good time with it and they loved it. I think we just need to move on."

On July 17, a unanimous jury awarded Gilley a $17-million judgment against the partner joint, says Gilley. "It turned into and also the right to take the that. At one time, it was a great Gilley name from the club and its place to go."

Costa-Gavras' 'Betrayed' will raise American hackles

By STEPHEN HUNTER
The Baltimore Sun

BALTIMORE — Franco-Greek filmmaker Costa-Gavras first assaulted the world stage in 1968 with "Z," his passionate indictment of the ruling military junta in Greece, the country of his birth. Since then, he has made a series of powerful films with political themes that exposed corruption, sloth and indifference the world over.

In "State of Siege" he examined the famous case in which South American leftist guerrillas kidnapped an American police officer sent to instruct the state's secret police, then tried and executed him; Costa-Gavras seemed to side with the guerrillas, to the outrage of many conservatives. On the other side of the spectrum, he made "The Confession," an indictment of Stalinist police state tendencies in Czechoslovakia during the 1950s.

But most famously, he is the director of "Missing," starring Jack Lemmon and Cissy Spacek, which held the State Department culpable in the cover-up of the death of a young American during a CIA-sponsored coup in Chile. The State Department has strongly denied any culpability.

Now the director is back with another film sure to raise hackles, temperatures and fury, dealing this time with entirely American themes.

"Betrayed" stars Debra Winger as a young FBI agent who is given the assignment of penetrating a fanatic right-wing conspiracy brewing in the heartland of he was pursuing an almost parallel course for a story about the violent French right.

Then Irwin Winkler, the pro-

'What I wanted to show is that behind the facade of good people, there lurks a capacity for evil. I wanted to show people who are obsessed with a notion or vision of a "clean society" who turn to violence.'

— Costa-Gavras, Franco-Greek filmmaker

America. Initially, she can find nothing but healthy Americans, hard-working farmers, whose most desperate allegiance is to the flag, apple pie and the American way of life. And eventually, she falls in love with one of them, a husky, laconic widower played by Tom Berenger.

By the time she makes the horrifying discovery that Berenger and his friends are racist murderers, she's now so deep she almost can't get out.

At the same time, she's buffeted by her superiors in the FBI, especially ex-cop John Heard, who keeps pushing her deeper in hopes of unraveling one last knot of conspiracy.

Costa-Gavras, who was born in Greece but who has lived in France since 1954, the picture actually began in France, where he wanted to do a picture in America, "the director remembered in a recent phone call. We got together with the writer, Joe Eszterhas, and tried to find some way into the material. He came up with the first draft, and we took off from there."

Eszterhas borrowed from several true episodes of racial and political violence — most notably the machine-gun murder of flamboyant Denver talk show host Alan Berg — and then threw in several even more horrific inventions.

"What I wanted to show," Costa-Gavras said, "is that behind the facade of good people, there lurks a capacity for evil. I wanted to show people who are obsessed with a notion or a vision of a 'clean society,' but how, lacking any way to articulate their feelings, they turn to violence."

In order to accurately capture his background and characters, he went on a research trip to the Middle West.

"I went to see the people of Nebraska and Missouri," he said, explaining how he worked up his vision of farm life, "and they are great people. Very hard working, very decent, but without what could be called 'Big Knowledge.'"

He hopes that the film will not be taken as an indictment of rural people, despite the fact that all the villains are country people, and no more or less "normal" agricultural workers are seen.

It's also important, he thinks, to show the killers not as psychopaths or maniacs; rather, he goes to great lengths to display them as family men, or men who have lost their farms or their children, men who have in some sense been wounded and then isolated from the larger society, carrying all sorts of vicious grudges.

"That's the big dilemma," he said. "If we show them as psychopaths, we miss the whole problem somehow. We are all, in some way or other, racists — it's just that some people just think that the solution is to eliminate the outsiders."

But Costa-Gavras acknowledges that in some cases he's inflated the level of violence for dramatic effect. One terrible sequence shows 10 white men literally hunting a kidnapped black man and ultimately killing him. While claiming that such episodes could happen and that, moreover, racial killings are common, he admits that nothing quite like this has occurred, or at least is not on the record.

Local films

The following are capsule reviews of some of the films playing locally in the Magic Valley. The ratings are by the Motion Picture Association of America and the Los Angeles Times. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times reviewers.

THE BIG BLUE (PG). Total disaster. In his English-language debut, French director Luc Besson ("Subway") has taken a love of the sea and a sample of a lifelong rivalry between two deep sea divers and blown them all out of proportion with a deluge of travelogue images and a ludicrous romance between one of the divers (Jean-Marc Barr) and a kooky insurance investigator (Rosanna Arquette).

BIG TOP PEE-WEE (PG). Do you have to like Pee-wee's quintessential brittleness to savor the movie? Probably not; he may sneak up on you anyway in a rapid fire of sight gags and droll lines, half the time throwaway. With his co-writer George McGrath and director Randall Kleiss, Paul Reubens (Pee-wee's alter ego) has kept the magic going far longer than you might have believed possible.

YOUNG GUNS (R). As a new version of the "Billy the Kid" legend, it pales beside some of its predecessors — like the Penn and Teller version. But this new Western, a kind of teen-movie "Seven Samurai," has some slick, smoky vigor. Emilio Estevez is remarkable as a notably psychopathic Billy; Kiefer Sutherland, Lou Diamond Phillips and Charlie Sheen make a fine ensemble.

COCKTAIL (R). Tom Cruise plays Brian Flanagan, whose dreams of high-powered jobs in advertising, banking, stock-broking or what-have-you are shattered by his lack of higher education. He settles, finally, for bartending in Manhattan, under the wing of Donatien Coughlin (the magnetic Bryan Brown). Cruise even gets his own bartending solo: juggling bottles, tossing ice and cocktail shakers behind his back, doing tidy little spins and discreet foot movements.

BAMBI (G). Based on Felix Salton's novel, Disney's 1942 animated feature about a young deer coming of age stands out as an example of visual storytelling.

Emmy show tries for appeal

By JOHN HORN
The Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Like other 40-year-olds, Sunday night's Emmy Awards is fighting to stay youthful.

While liposuction has yet to be contemplated, the 40th Annual Prime Time Emmy Awards are being produced this year by someone who has built a career out of spoofing the medium the Emmys are intended to celebrate.

Lorne Michaels, as the creator and original producer of NBC's "Saturday Night Live," has excelled at trashing television from top to bottom, from biting game-show and newscast parodies to seething "Highway Patrol" and "Ozzie and Harriet" send-ups.

But can Michaels satirize the Emmys themselves? "Well, this show won't take itself too seriously," Michaels said. If the Emmy telecast (at 7 p.m., on channel 9 for subscribers of Twin Falls' King Videocable) has suffered in the past, it has sprung from its unerring aptitude for boredom.

Michaels said "too many awards" are handed out at the Emmys. That he can't change "So, in trying to make the show entertaining, what I've tried to do is strip it down to its core — the awards — and make that go as quickly as possible, and then try to weave the entertainment parts through it."

Michaels promised there would not be any production numbers "per se," and he said he would "try to squeeze some comedy into the Governors Award, given this year to animators William Hanna and Joseph Barbera.

Michaels, a six-time Emmy winner, will be joined in the control booth at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium by Dave Wilson, the longtime "Saturday Night Live" director. And he plans to use several celebrities, including Mary Tyler Moore, Dick Van Dyke, Danny DeVito and Michael J. Fox, as hosts rather than depend on an individual.

It's hard to say if another new Emmy twist is serious or not. In one of the stranger moves in Emmy lore, this year's Emmy statuette, normally cast in gold, pewter and iron, is being played by a person.

"We talked to over a hundred women before we found Benedikte Handal," said Lewis Goldstein, a vice president of off-air promotion for Fox Broadcasting.

Water from sewage? It's becoming a reality

The Associated Press

ITHACA, N.Y. — Under the sunlit arch of a plastic greenhouse, an artificial grass sprouts from hydroponic troughs, soaking sustenance from a city's sewage.

This could be the waste treatment plant of the future.

Picture it: A natural system that uses microbes and marsh plants to transform raw sewage into sparkling clean water. Unlike conventional sewage facilities, which cost a fortune to run, this one makes money. It leaves no nasty sludge. It creates energy. It's so pretty it can be used as a park.

It sounds too good to be true. But it's already becoming a reality. Simple plant-based sewage treatment systems are being used on a small scale in parts of the South. And researchers are developing more refined and efficient systems they say could replace aging and inefficient conventional plants on a large scale within the next decade.

"We're looking at a whole new generation of waste treatment that's cheaper and much more efficient than anything that's available now, and produces useful resources," said William Jewell, a Cornell University agricultural engineer.

"Our goal is to eliminate pollution at a profit," Jewell said.

Beside Ithaca's new $40 million conventional treatment plant, which settles, aerates and chemically treats about 5 million gallons a day, he has set up a pilot model of his system with the capacity to purify 10,000 gallons of sewage a day — about what 100 people would produce.

The demonstration is funded by the state energy office and the Gas Research Institute, a utility-sponsored group trying to find new sources of natural gas.

"It's leaps and bounds ahead of anything that's been done before, both in terms of energy used and quality of water discharged," said Ron Isaacson, manager of the Chicago-based institute.

In Jewell's two-step system, raw sewage is partially cleaned in a tankful of bacteria, then piped into long, low troughs in a greenhouse, where it provides a "nutrient film" on which plants thrive.

The plants are grown hydroponically — with no soil. Their roots form a dense mat as they soak up the pollutants.

It's really a solar-powered filter, Jewell said on a recent tour.

In the first 4-foot-wide tank of cattails, the water is murky and smelly. By the time it reaches the end of the 250-foot-long series of tanks, in a few hours, it's clear as a brook and teeming with tiny snails and other creatures.

"These are copepods," said Jewell, scooping up a few fitting, lice-size crustaceans. Whenever you see them, you have tremendously clean water, like in a stream.

Engineer William Jewell holds 2 beakers of water, raw sewage on right and purified water made from it.

To make the water safe to drink, however, would take further treatment that could be done with a more extensive outdoor hydroponic system, which he plans to build this fall, or with a conventional filtration and chlorination plant.

A bonus to plant-based sewage treatment is that methane, sold as natural gas, is produced by the first-stage bacterial process. More can be made by harvesting the plants and processing them using the same bacteria.

Jewell figures a plant with the capacity to handle the sewage of 10,000 people, about a third the population of Ithaca, could generate $400,000 worth of methane a year. The system could also be used to grow flowers and tree seedlings for city parks or commercial nurseries.

But even without those products, Jewell said, his system would cost far less to build and operate than the plants now in use. He estimates that for a community of 10,000, his system would cost less than $1 million to build, compared to at least $5 million for a conventional plant.

"And the quality of water produced by our system far exceeds that achieved by conventional facilities," said Jewell.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has sponsored pioneering plant-based waste treatment projects in towns in California, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

These are the wastewater treatment systems of the future for small towns, especially since the federal grant money for sewage treatment has dried up in the last few years, said B.C. Wolverton, at NASA's National Space Technology Laboratory in Huntsville, Ala.

Wolverton's artificial marshes, which use floating plants like water hyacinths or rooted ones like bulrushes, have treated all the chemical waste and sewage from the NASA lab for more than 12 years. "We've saved many millions of dollars by using these systems," he said.

Some towns are using Wolverton's sewage marshes as parks, he said. The settling tanks are underground, and they're growing canna lilies and calla lilies in the channels.

Most of the systems that Wolverton has designed are for towns of fewer than 3,000 people. But an experimental system in operation in San Diego, using water hyacinths to make pure water from sewage, is expected to eventually handle a million gallons a day, he said.

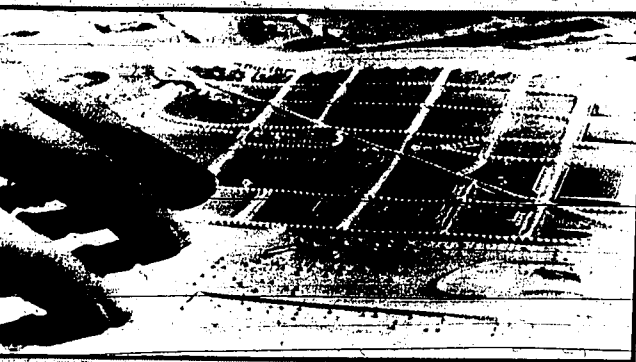

There's a desperate need to come up with a new source of water in the Southwest, said Wolverton. "This could be an answer."

Jewell's system in central New York differs in several ways from Wolverton's. For one thing, it uses greenhouses and hardy plants, making it feasible for use in northern climates.

"A main drawback to plant-based systems has been the climate limitation," said Jim Basilio, chief of the water and waste research division of the Environmental Protection Agency, which funded early stages of Jewell's project. "But if it works in Ithaca, it can work anywhere."

Another advantage of Jewell's system is that because of the type of bacteria it uses, it doesn't produce sludge like other hydroponic systems and conventional plants do. In most systems, organic pollutants are broken down by aerobic bacteria, which need oxygen. It costs the nation half a billion dollars a year in electricity to fill that oxygen need by aerating sewage, said Jewell.

Washington, D.C., map for blind opens up new worlds

Braille maps, with monuments visible to the hand, are available at congressional offices

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Blind and visually impaired visitors now can rely on an unusual new set of maps to get their bearings around the monuments and landmarks of the nation's capital.

The tactile maps, carrying legends in both English and Braille, were produced under a $150,000 federal contract by Joseph W. Wiedel, a geographer-cartographer at the University of Maryland.

The maps, intended for free distribution through congressional offices, are 14-by-19-inch plastic sheets that depict such landmarks as the Lincoln Memorial, the White House and the Washington Monument as bumps shaped like their actual contours.

The maps cover the Mall, Capitol Hill, Arlington Cemetery, the two Jimi Memorial and other sights, as well as the floor plan of the U.S. Capitol.

A separate map and smaller pocket guide covers the Metro rapid transit system. Different geometric shapes let vision-impaired visitors know not only the subway stops but what side of the platform the train comes in on.

About $85,000 of the contract went to produce six larger display modules of the maps which will be placed around Washington; and 20 traveling exhibits that will be lent to libraries and other places around the country.

George Covington, a legally blind Interior Department official who directed the "Tactile Capital" project, said, "These maps are unique. There are no others like them in the world right now."

The project was financed by the Education Department's National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research.

Madeline Will, an assistant secretary of education, said the maps "set a standard for other cities and help to make Washington, D.C., the most accessible capital in the world."

Covington said the maps, faithful to the actual scale of the streets and landmarks of Washington and its environs, are designed more to give blind or visually impaired people their bearings than to guide them every foot of the way. "It's not intended for a blind person to know up in the middle of the Mall and instantly know where everything is," said Covington, who has only 5 percent vision in one eye. "But if you come out of the Longworth Building, you'll know that the Capitol is in front of you and the Washington Building is off to your left."

Maddencruiser proves godsend to claustrophobic broadcaster

By The Los Angeles Times

There are 3,760 buses in the Greyhound Lines-Trailways fleet. But only one is famous.

That one, called the Maddencruiser, is the vehicle in which football analyst and broadcaster John Madden rides around the country from game to game.

Madden, a former coach of the Oakland Raiders, suffers from claustrophobia while in flight and has not boarded a plane since 1979. For a few years Madden traveled by train but stopped because he did not want to be bound by a rigid schedule. On a bus, he says, he can stop when he wants to, he can alter his route and he can travel at his own pace.

"I love trains," he said in a telephone interview the other day, "but they are becoming so popular you have to make reservations months in advance. I can't do that. I often don't know 'til a few days before what my schedule will be. I have complete control over a bus. I can go in 10 minutes."

On the outside, the Maddencruiser — which Madden has used since mid-1987 — looks just like any other new Greyhound, except that it is six inches higher to provide extra headroom.

chairs, telephone and intercommunications system, two color television sets, a citizens band radio, two laser disc players, a built-in vacuum cleaner, a stereo system and two videotape players. (Madden spends much of every week on the road watching the tapes of the previous week.

'Boats and campers always have small toilets and showers. I wanted a big shower and a very big bed.'

— John Madden, CBS sports analyst end's football games to prepare for the coming weekend's broadcast on CBS television.)

The Maddencruiser was built to Madden's specifications. "Boats and campers always have small toilets and showers," said Madden, a large man. "I wanted a big shower and a very big bed." But Madden does not consider his home on wheels, which sleeps seven, all that. That's it. It is more like an "efficiency apartment," he said.

Last year, Madden traveled 55,000 miles on the Maddencruiser, driven by his primary driver for the year, Willie Yarbrough of Los Angeles. The bus also carries a relief driver to spell Yarbrough, who was chosen for the rotating job in a competition open to all Greyhound drivers with at least a decade of service. Competition for a new driver for the 1988 football season is under way, and the winner will be announced Aug. 3. Yarbrough, who said he and Madden became close during the year they traveled together, had a seat in the broadcast booth when Madden was on the air.

Though the cruiser's refrigerator is well-stocked, Madden stops several times a day to eat. And he is usually recognized. He says he likes to get off main highways and go into small towns to meet the people and "to buy a hat or a coffee mug." He also carries a supply of Maddencruiser hats and shirts to hand out.

He once stopped in Sidney, Neb., to watch a Monday night football game. The Tastee-Freeze shop where he stopped had his television set tuned to the game but was empty of customers. Not for long.

The shop owner began calling people, and soon a reporter and a photographer arrived. Then came the high school basketball team, still in uniform. Someone had called the coach, who canceled practice because of the famous visitor. The local football coach brought his wife, children, friends and neighbors.

The Hubble Space Telescope

Free from the distorting effect of the atmosphere and backscattered radiation from city lights, the space telescope should allow scientists to see much more than ever before.

- Procedure
1. The space telescope will be deployed by the space shuttle.
  2. Once in operation it receives stellar light through the aperture.
  3. The light strikes the primary mirror, is reflected back to the secondary mirror where it is again reflected through a hole in the primary mirror to the focal plane.
  4. The scientific instruments pick up the image.
  5. This information is then transmitted to the Tracking and Data Relay Satellite.
  6. The satellite, in turn, transmits the information to White Sands, N.M.
  7. It is then sent to Goddard Space Center in Maryland where the raw data is correlated.
  8. Finally, the data is sent to Space Telescope Science Institute.

- Objectives
- Observe potential planets in other solar systems.
  - Look deeper into space and therefore further back in time.
  - Observe quasars, neutron stars and indirectly black holes.
  - View 350 times more volume of space.

BOBBY WOLFF

"It is a horrible demoralizing thing to be a lawyer. You look for such low motives in everyone and everything."

— Katherine T. Hinkson.

Many declarers would play to lose with West's slam without giving West any problems. And they would suffer a sure one down. A cunning South gives West a chance to go wrong and a good reason to question South's motives.

South wins the diamond-lead and notes that the slam is cold if trumps are 2-2 or if either opponent drops a singleton queen. Those clean suits with no larceny in them play the top trumps. Nothing good happens here as West turns up with a trump trick. And when the queen and jack of spades do not fall doubtless, South must concede a club for one down.

The tricky declarer cashes only one high trump before giving West some bait. He cashes two high spades and ruffs a third round with his jack of trumps. If West panics and overruffs, the slam comes home. Dummy's trump eight picks up West's last trump and provides the crucial entry to a good spade. South discards his losing club, and it's 12 tricks and slam for South.

West should not fall for South's gambit, but that is what the game is about. If West asks himself why only one round of trumps was drawn, he will find a reason not to release his sure trump winner.

Answers: Three clubs. This is a good hand opposite North's reverse bid. If North needs a red suit, bid three no-trump to show stoppers in both black suits.

Brad Garrett finds success after winning big on 'Star Search' show

By Evan Levine

Maybe you thought "Star Search" was just for drum majorettes and people singing "Feelings." But Brad Garrett, a stand-up comedian and the first $100,000 grand champion on the show, knows a good thing when he sees it. Since that appearance, he's taken his act across the country, appeared on "The Tonight Show," been cited by People magazine as one of its "Top Ten Comedians," and opened for celebrities from Diana Ross to the Beach Boys. Now he's starring in the new CBS limited-run series "First Impressions." The show centers around the owner of a commercial production company (Garrett) who becomes a single (no doubt sensitive) father after his wife walks out on him and his daughter (Brandy Gold). It airs Saturdays.

"Star Search" gave me exposure," Garrett says. "And I learned a lot from it. I learned that you have to lighten up on your first joke or it could be your last joke. And I learned that jokes about myself put the audience at ease. They think you won't turn on them."

Many of Garrett's self-directed jokes focus on his height: he's 6 feet 9 inches tall.

"I was always large as a kid, and not much into the books," he says. "Jokes and impressions of teachers were always my defense."

After a five-week stint at UCLA, Garrett decided to tell those jokes full time. Like his win on "Star Search," his first real break also came in an unusual way.

"I was waiting tables," he recalls, "and I wasn't very good. I was never the good waiter. I was always the nice waiter. There was a producer at my table, and I started telling him jokes. He said, 'What are you, a comedian?' I said yes, and he asked if I could tell jokes for 12 minutes and open up for Dionne Warwick because they needed a last-minute replacement. So of course I said sure. When I actually got up there, I was so excited that I ran over and was on stage for about 25 minutes."

Telling jokes may be a part of Garrett's repertoire, but doing impressions is his first love.

"You have to make sure that the person you want to do is in your range," he explains. "I'd love to do Pee-wee Herman, for example, but I can't." What he can do, however, is an admirable rendition of Bill Cosby, which he launches into over the phone, as the interview is being conducted. "You just have to study that person and see what makes them different and play tapes until you've gotten it," he says. "I knew it was OK because Cosby saw me perform and imitate him, and he asked me to come on the 'Tonight Show' with him. When I did him, he said, 'I don't sound like that!' He was a little embarrassed."

But it was Garrett's impressions that launched his current TV role.

"The casting people were at the Improv (comedy club) looking for stand-ups who could do impressions and who had acting experience," he explains. "I had none. They weren't exactly hell-bent on seeing me, but I arranged a meeting. I think they liked me because I do clean humor — 95 percent of it you can do anywhere. And also, I'm big, but I'm not mean or menacing. I guess they thought I could interact with a little girl. The next day, they sent me the script, and it had some of the jokes I'd done the night before!"

On The Cover Brad Garrett stars in "First Impressions." The limited CBS series airs Saturdays.

married? — B.I.

A: The rock star has a live-in love, Trudie Styler, the mother of two of his children. She's not exactly the Hollywood starlet type. I met Trudie at a Tinseltown party not long ago. She's British and more cozy than Hollywood-style gorgeous. Whatever, Sting certainly seems taken with her, and reports have it that they're planning to wed soon.

COHN-TROVERSY ON CABLE: It's easy to see why cable viewing is on the rise these days. All three major networks turned down the chance to do a movie version of the Roy Cohn story, which is a real sizzler. The life story on Cohn, one of the most controversial figures in U.S. history, is going to be filmed for release on HBO.

Q: Isn't it true that Marlene Dietrich now sees no one, and I mean no one, except her doctor? — O.P.

A: As I've reported many times, Dietrich, now in her 80s, lives in splendid isolation in Paris. There's even been a movie made on the subject. Marlene hasn't laid eyes on her four grandsons in three years. The only person — outside of doctors — with regular access to her apartment is her daughter, Maria Riva.

Q: We hear James Taylor had to go on his current tour because he needs the money. What gives? — D.D.

A: Don't know how that story got started. Taylor and his wife, Kathryn Walker, just spent $1,125,000 for 38 acres of land in Roxbury, Conn., not far from Dustin Hoffman, playwright Arthur Miller and a host of other celebrities.

TIME OUT: Chances are the Reagan "Kitchen Cabinet" will be convening in Kansas City over the Labor Day weekend. That's when Charles Price, the U.S. Ambassador to Great Britain, and his wife Carol will marry off their eldest daughter. Price is the scion of the Price Candy Company of Kansas City and a great supporter of President Reagan. Most of the Reagan administration socialites have been invited to the big bash.

Q: Was Barbra Streisand disappointed because she didn't get that plum role in the movie version of the musical "Evita"? We heard that Madonna has been signed. — G.L.

A: Even Barbra's friends thought she wanted it, but Streisand told everyone who has asked that she was never interested in the part. The one who is truly disappointed is Meryl Streep, who loves a challenge, and would like to take on a role that involves singing and dancing. Streep is hoping if there's any change in the casting that the part will be offered to her.

Q: Isn't it true that Van Johnson, once the favorite of bobby soxers at the old MGM studios, has become a hermit in old age? — R.R.

A: Yes, to a large extent. Now 72, Johnson still keeps professionally active. He's been busy these past few months in summer stock and has feature and TV movie projects lined up. But a close friend reports that Johnson is almost as reclusive as his friend Marlene Dietrich. When he isn't acting, he spends most of his time in his New York apartment pursuing his hobby, painting.

WEIRD STAR: A famed personality recently granted a mass media interview accompanied by demands so outrageous that seasoned studio press agents shook their heads in disbelief. Up until the last moment, it was touch and go as to whether he'd even grant the interview at all. Then, Mr. Star couldn't make up his egotripping mind whether to put on his makeup at the studio or in his makeup camper! Next, he specified a repast of Munster cheese with plain green olives and no pimientos — repeat, no pimientos — all this on a special, hard-to-find bread. The irony is that after all this nonsense, his new picture isn't doing so well at the box office.

Q: I've read that the late John Huston was totally opposed to colorization of his black-and-white movies like "The Maltese Falcon," along with other films that were similarly reprocessed. Was he opposed to making movies in color, too? — P.R.

A: John Huston once confided to an interviewer that he had never, even seen a color film that he truly liked. Surprised, the reporter then asked whether that judgment held true for the classic, "The African Queen," which he directed, and which was filmed in color. Huston smiled ironically and replied, "Yes, it does apply."

Promising hockey star scores as Alan-Michael on 'Guiding Light'

By JOHN N. GOUDAS

When you talk to Carl Evans, who plays Alan-Michael Spaulding in "Guiding Light," you come away exhausted just thinking of all the things this young and energetic actor manages to cram into a single day (and night).

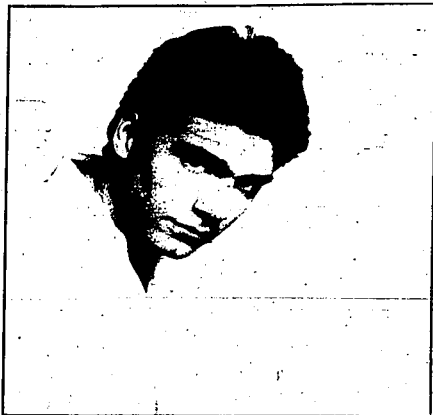

In addition to being pretty prominent in the soap's current storyline, the 20-year-old New York-bred actor is also starring in an off-Broadway musical thriller entitled "Slasher." If that weren't enough, he also is very active in promoting the Bide-A-Wee Association, an animal-adoption shelter, and his interest in conservation takes up the rest of his free time.

Does this qualify Carl as an over-achiever? Most definitely.

When he was a youngster in junior high school, however, he was discovered to be suffering badly from dyslexia. This prompted him to make a decision that he has followed from that day forward. He could either hide behind his learning disorder or work 10 times harder and try to overcome it. You guessed it, he opted to work, and in his relatively short life thus far he has managed to achieve many victories.

One of his first triumphs involved hockey. At the age of 11 he discovered that he had a natural proclivity for the sport and would play on teams with his older brother (he had to be very good for his older brother to allow him to play). Before long, Carl joined an All Star Traveling Team and soon became a star among stars, averaging 6 goals per game. The young player even got to train with the New York Islanders on occasion.

It was assumed at this point that Carl had found his goal in life and would become a professional hockey player in a few years. He might have done just that had it not been for an accidental brush with high school dramatics. When Carl read for a part in his high school production of "Wait Until Dark," he found a new avenue of expression one that he felt comfortable with and afforded him a creative outlet.

Carl Evans stars as Alan-Michael on "Guiding Light"

Carl's teachers encouraged him to consider becoming an actor and helped him get an acting scholarship to Adelphi University in New York. But he never felt very comfortable in his new surroundings, in which he had to forsake his hockey garb for tights — which he swears he wore for four days straight while working on Shakespeare.

Carl left Adelphi after a short time and decided to see what the real acting world was like. He auditioned for a role in "Loving" but didn't get it. He did, however, land an important modeling assignment in print ads for New York City's teenage pregnancy awareness campaign. His face had become so familiar that the next job he went after, he got — the role of Alan-Michael in "Guiding Light."

Carl's plans for the future include more stage work, films, TV, marriage and kids; producing, directing, more charity work and meeting whatever other challenges may happen to come his way.

CHANNEL CHATTER

Young Danielle Harris, who plays Sammi Garretson in "One Life to Live," has the leading role in "Halloween IV," the next installment in the horror movie series that started the whole box-office bonanza for the genre.

Danielle plays Jamie, the daughter of the now deceased Laurie, whom fans will recall was Jason's first almost-victim in the original "Halloween." Donald Pleasence, who played the doctor in a couple of the "Halloween" movies, is also back. Incidentally, they named Danielle's character Jamie as a sort of tribute to Jamie Lee Curtis, who, as Laurie, was

HE'S HOT, THEY'RE MEDIUM RARE: "Vibes," the new comedy, stars Cyndi Lauper and Jeff Goldblum as slap-happy mediums, was filmed in Ecuador. You might have expected them to be the ones recognized on the street by fans. But it was Peter Falk who got the most doubletakes and hellos from onlookers. The reason: Falk's "Columbo" TV series has made him an international celebrity and if there's a rooftop adorned with a TV antenna, he'll be recognized.

Q: What's become of Patti Page, the singing rage of the 1950s? Is she still singing? — A.R.

A: Patti is among the most commercially successful recording artists in history. She has over 80 albums to her credit. Her version of "Tennessee Waltz" is the second most popular single record in history. Despite her absence from show biz for two decades, Patti boasts a crystal-clear voice, good enough for the nightclub return she is currently making. Page doesn't need the work, she just loves to sing.

Q: What was the outcome of that legal hassle over whether Jessica Hahn should give back the money the PTL paid to keep her quiet about her sexual encounter with Jim Bakker? — W.Z.

A: U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Rufus Reynolds just ruled that the PTL should get back $160,000 in hush money. Hahn said after the ruling, "I feel in my heart that the money belongs to the ministry and I hope that it will now be used properly and not for Jim Bakker's or anyone else's gain."

Q: Wasn't it a bit weird for Jill Ireland to call a press conference to announce the news of her re- newed breast cancer condition? — M.G.

A: After her first round of breast cancer four years ago, Jill made the decision to go public with her fight. She wrote a book, "Life Wish," and inspired a lot of women battling the same condition. When doctors diagnosed in July a cancerous lymph node above her right collarbone, she decided it was important to go public again.

Q: Was Marilyn McCoo ever a member of that group the Fifth Dimension? — F.H.

A: The answer is yes. McCoo is now working on a new record album and putting together her one-woman show. The former Fifth Dimension songstress admires Judy Garland, secretly loves potato chips and hates backstabbers. Her biggest accomplishment? Staying married to hubby Billy Davis Jr. for 19 years.

the first leading lady to run from Jason's killing rampage.

PLOT PORTENTS

Jack is not faring too well in the world of politics on "Days of Our Lives." He probably could use some advice from Angelica or Patch. Childless Adrienne fears losing Justin while Benji charms his grandfather.

Felicia is unable to trust Colton, who is still doting on the mystery woman on "General Hospital." Tony stays with Bobbie but Gregory tells Bobbie that he's not about to give up on her. Louise witnesses a fight between Lucy and Terry. Despite troubles, Felicia and Colton come together for a night of love.

After she loses custody of her child, a distraught Tori is driven around the bend on "Santa Barbara." T.J. is about to give up on Kelly and an uneasy Scott hopes he's wrong about Zack.

Will Jessica's presence affect Traci's pregnancy on "The Young and the Restless"? Leanna wonders if she'll be able to handle Victor when he learns the truth and Nina, under Rex's expert tutelage, surprises Phillip.

Bo the impostor holds Didi hostage on "One Life to Live." After Tina is lured to a hotel room, the impostor takes her to a nearby carnival where Cord rescues her. Steve asks Gabrielle for a divorce. Meanwhile, with Didi handcuffed to an electrical panel at the carnival's fun house, Bo and the impostor confront each other. Tina goes to meet Ursula, a friend of Patrick London's.

On "Ryan's Hope," Sylvio, Ryan and Jack convince George Anthony to end the violence and he gives up without a fight. Jill Novak is worried that Siobahn is obsessed with Max Dubujak. At a florist shop, we see a stranger's back as he orders a rose which he plans to deliver to Siobahn. Later, as Siobahn is taking a shower, a figure enters the bathroom.

NBC still tops

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS overwhelmed its rivals in the A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings on Sunday night, but it wasn't enough to overcome a bad start earlier in the week during the Republican National Convention.

CBS' Sunday night lineup of "60 Minutes" and "Murder, She Wrote" tied for first place and the movie "Outrage" starring Robert Preston and Beau Bridges placed fifth, but NBC still won the week with an average rating of 8.3. CBS was second with 8.2 and ABC was third with 7.8.

On Sunday, CBS averaged 15.2 compared to 9.2 for ABC and 8.3 for NBC.

The rest of the top 10 included "The Cosby Show" on NBC in third, NBC's "Golden Girls" in fourth, NBC's "Different World" in sixth, followed by NBC's "Amen," NBC's "Hunter" and a tie between NBC's "227" and ABC's Sunday movie, "Letting Go."

Each rating point represents 1 percent of the nation's 86.6 million homes with television.

Ratings were depressed by four days of prime-time coverage of the Republican National Convention, which attracted an even smaller audience than the Democratic convention.

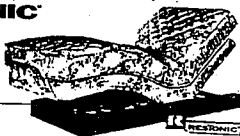

The three networks had only 47 percent of the television viewing audience last week, down from an average of 67 percent for the season.

NBC won the first night of the convention but ABC ran well ahead in the next three nights to average a 6.6 rating. NBC followed with 6.4 while CBS, whose best showing was a second-place tie Wednesday night, averaged 5.7.

'L.A. Law's' Larry Drake: Will he win an Emmy for portraying Benny?

By PATRICIA BRENNAN
The Washington Post

Larry Drake, up for an Emmy for his role of Benny Stulwicz in "L.A. Law," is so good portraying the retarded mail clerk and go-fer for the fictional Los Angeles law firm of MacKenzie Brackman that an advocacy group for the mentally retarded contacted Drake's agent to find out whether he was only acting.

"My biggest fear is that Benny will become idealized, become a role model instead of a real person — which I cannot play," said Drake. "I heard that a group in Chicago, that helped the retarded learn job skills, had a client who said, 'I want to be Benny.' Not the person, of course, but to have his job. But for a retarded person to be working in a major law firm, that's all too rare."

On the other hand, the role has been a boon to Drake's career. "I was out of work the year before I got the role," he said. "I didn't watch that much television, except for baseball and old movies, but 'L.A. Law' is one of the few series I'd watch."

"I don't absolutely want to take credit for the role of Benny. It's the writers: They don't moralize; they don't preach. They just want to tell a story. It's more effective. Advice will go over your head, but experience will sink in. People will watch and say, 'Maybe working with a retarded person isn't so bad.'"

He also has had to come to grips with the term "retarded," which he prefers — and which he thinks Benny would prefer — over euphemisms such as "mentally challenged" or "developmentally disabled."

"When Benny called himself retarded in the script, I wondered if it would cause waves, and I questioned whether to bring that up. But I didn't, because I thought, Benny would know that word — all he has known is 'retarded.' I personally think it's a very accurate word. It means 'belated.'"

Drake, whose extensive theatrical background includes nearly 100 roles, holds a degree in drama from the University of Oklahoma. He has worked in dinner theaters and regional theaters, doing 28 characters in 14 plays for San Diego's Old Globe Theatre. He has done three feature films (including "The Karate Kid"), two television movies and small roles on several TV series including "Hunter" and "Hardcastle and McCormick."

But Benny Stulwicz has allowed him to go beyond those roles.

"I've been wanting to personify act for years. No one really asks me to do that. They want me to hide behind a beard, to be dumber than I am, to be tougher than I am. Benny's a mask, of course, because he's not me. A lot of people thought the role would be dull. But I looked at it because I could wear my own shoes, it would be my own hair and so forth. And there's the challenge."

He also finds that television has made him a celebrity. "I do have a concern, because it's such a strong image. When people pass me in the street, they recognize me. I get approached a lot. I got recognized at 70 miles an hour in my dark glasses recently. A driver on the freeway pulled up alongside, and once he decided it was really me, he waved and hollered."

"I think people approach me more warmly because I play Benny. I've probably done a hundred or so interviews, and it's always been very positive. I think people approach Corbin Bernsen differently," because of the type of character he plays.

"L.A. Law" grabbed 19 Emmy nominations this year, eight of them for the actors. Two of the more prominent members of the cast stand out for being ignored.

"Harry Hamlin got missed again (for an Emmy nomination) this year," said Drake. "I think what happens is that some people look at Harry as a pretty boy, and there's a bias there. He is good-looking, but he's also a good actor. Dick Dysart, it hasn't quite been his turn yet. They're all wonderful."

Like most actors who fear being type-cast, Drake is branching out. He has made a television movie that will probably air this fall before "L.A. Law" resumes its season on Nov. 3. The story, a remake of "Leave Her to Heaven," which starred Cornel Wilde and Gene Tierney, will feature Patrick Duffy and Lonnie Anderson. Drake will play Duffy's best friend, who happens to be a lawyer.

Benny would like that.

Moyers, Ellerbe will return to TV with new shows in fall

Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK — "USA Today" and "Monitor World" are not the only national programs by former network newsmen with a Sept. 12 premiere date. Public television's Bill Moyers, who left CBS News in 1986, also has one bowing then.

It is "Bill Moyers' World of Ideas," a 10-week series of half-hour interviews to be aired each weeknight.

It will feature, Moyers says, "people of ideas and vision and insight not normally heard" during election-year campaign seasons. The lead-off witness: film maker David Puttnam, former head of Columbia Studios.

Linda Ellerbee is another network news graduate (ABC and NBC) with something afoot in September. But not for TV. It is a once-a-week column for the Hearst newspaper syndicate.

In January, though, the former co-anchor of "Our World" and "NBC News Overnight" is scheduled to return to TV — in a new late-night, syndicated, sort-of-news series, "And So It Goes."

"I don't know how to describe it easily," she said by telephone from New Orleans, where she was doing commentary on the GOP national convention for Cable News Network.

"It's a picture show, a video scrapbook kind of show. It's quirky news pieces, show-off editing and shooting — like news videos cut to music."

It also will have "home videos" contributed by celebrities to whom the show loans a camera. Ellerbee says she already has one video, by "Doonesbury" cartoonist Gary Trudeau and his wife, "Today" co-anchor Jane Pauley.

Our family-based treatment program is covered by many insurance plans. Your loved one will be treated in a warm, open environment. And she'll be able to share her pain with others with the same disease.

This kind of carefully structured recovery program is working for all kinds of people. And it can work for you. But you have to put aside all the excuses and make the call. Do it now. We can break the cycle of addiction, and help get you back to better times.
